THE RAZORBACK 1929

In this volume of the Razorback we are dreaming—dreaming of the time when the University of Arkansas will have realized the visions of our progressive administration—an administration which has planned for us and our children a Greater University of Arkansas. You see in visionary clouds the tower of our future building of Administration. This structure is to stand where old Main Hall, campus guardian for more than five decades, now rests.

THE RAZORBACK OF TWENTY-NINE

Our next generation will leave the crooked paths our fathers and we have trod and enter into a Greater University beneath the vaulted arch of a lofty campanile. Once inside, the newcomer will perceive many realizations of our vision—a building program well begun. In spirit we have reached the entrance of our future University. Follow us through the buildings and grounds of old Arkansas fifty years hence.

THE GREATER UNIVERSITY

DEDICATION

Our hearts are wrapped up in the future—when the State of Arkansas will look with the same merited pride upon the material resources of her University that she now holds for the exponents of it. And it is certain to come. Men of foresight and vision have planned the campus of tomorrow and the people of Arkansas have responded to the call. They have allowed their property to be taxed that their children and their children's children may enjoy the full benefits of higher learning. The sacrifice is noble and our appreciation is great. So—

To a Greater University of Arkansas—greater physically, intellectually, and morally—and to the people at large in our State who are making the development possible with their earnest assistance and sincere co-operation, THE RAZORBACK OF 1929 IS MOST RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED.

ARKANSAS

FOREWORD

To arouse that spirit of enthusiasm for a Greater University of Arkansas has been our endeavor in this volume of the Razor-back. Now of all times the University has reached the blooming point of advancement and is ready for growth and expansion. To the taxpayers of this commonwealth we wish to say that your money will be spent to the greatest benefit of mankind and that in future years you can look upon the towers and spires of a Greater University and exclaim in all truth and sincerity, "I helped make it what it is, and it is mine."

If we have succeeded in exciting the spirit of progress for our University in the breast of only one who otherwise would not have caught it, then our efforts have not been spent in vain, and we are happy.

VISION

God grant that the germ of Ambition which He has given us for a Greater University of Arkansas will impel us to achieve, develop, and attain.

We are thankful that our University is restless—for a contented institution is a dead institution.

May our aspirations be filled with Industry. Without Industry, Ambition can only lead to disquieted dreaming.

This creed—we have attempted to reveal to you in the 32nd volume of the Razorback.

CONTENTS

The veil is lifted. Here is the University which will be sufficient to huddle under her wings 8,000 students—develop their talents—remedy their errors—and send them out in all directions as apostles to humanity.

ADMINISTRATION

Those who will administer our Greater University of Arkansas will be to themselves at the hub of the campus, away from hurrying, scurrying classes. As now all sidewalks lead to Main, then will the entire campus look in that direction for authority, Centralization and specialization will be distinctive of all buildings and departments—and so it will be with University government.

Total additional maintenance. . . . $130,000.00 to $680,000.00

The additional maintenance should increase gradually over the period. It would be needed to take care of additional number of students and of new activities in which the University should engage for the benefit of the people of the state.

THE present physical plant of the University of Arkansas is one of the poorest physical plants of any state university. On the other hand the faculty ranks among the best in the nation. As regards the faculty, such high standards are not equaled by any of the southern state universities, many of which are more fortunate in their physical plants.

It is the hope of the present members of the Board of Trustees that the next session of the legislature will provide the much-needed appropriations.

In the recent session of the legislature there was the first interest shown in many years on the part of that assembly. Probably the most significant feature of this manifestation was the firm stand of the present executive of the state, Governor Parnell. He not only promised his support, but lived up to his promises and worked for a greater University and education in general.

In the person of Governor Harvey Parnell, the University has not only a friend but a supporter and one that will mean much to the building of Arkansas educationally.

March 1, 1929.

As Governor of my native State, it has been my ambition first to relieve the burden of taxes where they have heretofore fallen most heavily; second, to place within the reach of every bare-foot boy and girl in this State a common-school education; and third, to make the University of Arkansas, together with the other educational institutions of the State, an Institution of learning, of which we may not only be justly proud, but one which will take first rank among the educational institutions of our country.

President John Clinton Futrall

Of the University of Arkansas

THAT a "Greater University of Arkansas" is not an upstart idea, and that the project has been well thought out and visionized, may be indicated in statements issued from the office of the president for years past.

In 1926, after the legislature had appropriated $650,000 for the construction of new buildings, the president wrote: "With a foresight which has often been lacking in the management of universities, the Trustees first employed a competent firm of architects to make a group plan of the campus, projecting buildings that would ultimately be sufficient for a University of eight thousand students. To some this may seem like looking unnecessarily far into the future, but we who have an abiding faith in the future of Arkansas do not think so."

On the same subject in 1927 he states: "With the adoption of a building plan and the completion of the first two units of this plan in the spring of 1927, the University enters upon a new period in its history. An over-ambitious program, however, should not lead us into distributing our efforts over so wide a field as to injure the quality of the educational work in those portions of the field in which the state finds the greatest need for service from the University. For a state university, which is the outgrowth of the hopes and desires of the people of the state, owes it to its constituency to look first to the needs of its own people.

It should, therefore, be our aim to improve the institution that we have, strengthening here, modifying there, until we have an institution which, while not one of the largest, will be conceded to be equal to the best in the quality of its output."

Concerning the president and his work for a greater University of Arkansas, the editor of the 1921 Razorback wrote: "President John Clinton Futrall for eight years has devoted himself without reserve to the making of a Greater University. No man has a broader vision or a higher ideal for the future of the institution. He has laid the broad foundations for the Arkansas of tomorrow; he has attracted to the institution men of national standing and recognized ability; and he has made it not only a vital factor in the life of the state but he has brought it into national prominence. He has worked for building up the University, struggling with financial embarrassments and often with the most bitter opposition."

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS,
FAYETTEVILLE.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

The greatest immediate problem that the University of Arkansas has before it is the securing of an adequate physical plant. If the day ever existed when a good school consisted of close association between a student and a great man, that day has gone forever. The things that are done in libraries and laboratories are the life of the modern university. Lacking these, an institution, though it may have great men and great scholars in its faculty, is unable to train students properly to meet the complex situations of life as it exists today.

The General Assembly of the state of Arkansas in 1927 formally adopted the plan for a University building program which had been worked out in the preceding year. Two of these buildings have already been constructed and equipped.

May we not hope that a great state, inhabited by a great people, will not allow many more years to pass before several other similar structures arise on the campus?

John C. Futrall

President of the University

Graduate School

DEAN JOHN CLARK JORDAN

"WE DO not give a doctor's degree, because we're not prepared to do the work," I told a distinguished scholar and administrator from a large state university, who visited at the University of Arkansas some months ago.

"That notion," he replied, "is something new. It affords me much pleasure to come into acquaintance with your institution. I hope you will pardon my presumption if I speak my mind on the subject."

I assured him that I was glad to hear him commend the policy of the Graduate Faculty; and that I should be pleased to have his further opinion as to our proper method of development.

"Then briefly. You are right in thinking that a graduate school cannot be created out of hand. It must be a building upon a significant undergraduate life, and not something imposed from above. You can therefore give sound graduate work only in so far as you can give sound graduate training.

The superstructure can be no sounder than its foundation." I told my guest that we were only too conscious of our limitations in many of our departments of study, and that consequently through lack of library, or equipment, or of qualified staff, we were offering no graduate courses in a considerable number of our departments. I said, however, that, with all humility, I felt sure that some of our departments were prepared to offer work for the master's degree, and do it well.

"Of that," he replied, "I have no doubt. Even so, you have a period of transition. You have adjustments to make in your teaching force; to release time and energy from accustomed duties for the initiation of new interests, new habits of thought, new problems arising from the presence of graduate students. It all amounts to this—for I must cut this preachment short and not transform a social call into a classroom lecture—the way to a greater graduate school is to proceed slowly but soundly."

For this page in the Razorback, which I understand is consecrated by the slogan, "A Greater University," I have thought of nothing better than my illustrious visitor's remarks.

College of Arts and Sciences

A GREATER College of Arts and Sciences for the University of Arkansas implies growth and development, not only in numbers, but also in material equipment, in the strength of its teaching force, and in a more important thing, the desire of those who are enrolled in it for a more abundant life.

This College may not, before the last survivor of the Class of 1929 totters to his grave in 2009, attain the enrollment of similar colleges in 1929, such as the University of California with her 9,700 students, or even the University of Texas with more than 3,400, but it will grow as the people of the state feel the need of a more rounded development for those who are to come after them.

When the people are interested in their institution and feel that it is theirs, a part of them, then, it will gain momentum and every year will be more progressive than the year before. The material equipment will increase as rapidly as the loyal alumni acquaint the people of the state with its desires and its demands.

It will become truly great when its students are inspired by the desire to know and feel, not "lost causes" and "impossible loyalties," but the best that man has been able to do in every domain of human endeavor and eternal hunger of the human heart for beauty, and to attempt to add to what our ancestors have left us.

Numbers, palaces of stone, libraries, laboratories and gifted teachers are all machinery, immensely valuable if the inner fire exists; without it, they are as meaningless to progressive civilization as the Tower of Babel. However, as an incentive to this inner fire, the material resources of an institution are often necessary. An outward expression of progressiveness is an impetus to the inner expression in adding self-confidence and reliance, and for the doing away of mental complexes that may arise. The two factors, though, will go hand in hand in the building and making up of a "GREATER UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS."

DEAN VIRGIL L. JONES

School of Law

DEAN J. S. WATERMAN

FIVE years have passed since the School of Law of the University of Arkansas was established. In that short period it has become a member of the Association of American Law Schools, it has been placed on the approved list of the American Bar Association and its work fully accredited by the State Department of Education of New York. An excellent law library of nine thousand volumes has been acquired, a carefully planned curriculum adopted, and a spirit of loyalty to the school and of respect for legal scholarship developed among its students.

Having made an excellent start in its initial task of laying a firm foundation for effectual classroom work, the School of Law now seeks further contact with the bar of the states so that its students may learn more of the traditions of the profession which they are about to enter. It also desires a medium of publication for the investigations conducted by its students and faculty in the case and statutory law of Arkansas. No more effective means to accomplish these ends can be found than a law bulletin.

The issuance of such a journal ought to be the next step in the development of the Law School and its publication should stimulate the law students to further investigation, serve as a place for the discussion of local legal problems by members of our bar and law staff, and bring the School into closer relations with the profession in the state.

So in conclusion, we should say, that the future outlook for the University of Arkansas Law Department is bright and it is expected to grow in the coming years, not only in enrollment, but in equipment, faculty staffs and laboratories for legal study. It was only in the fall of 1927 that the law students organized a separate student body known as the Associated Law Students. It, as an organization, has its officers, its business and general routine, yet, in addition to these functions the organization carries on legal discussions and current events pertaining to the legal profession. The evolution of the Law School is hoped and expected to be fast and grow in prestige with the growth and prestige of a "GREATER UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS."

College of Education

THE editorial mentor who "touched" me for this dissertation gave me to understand that the policy of this year's annual is to be one of optimism and expansion, looking forward with confidence to a greater University of Arkansas. I like this idea and shall do all I can to aid, abet and comfort its promoters. It would, however, be more comfortable if this dealing in futures might be postponed until after the present legislature had adjourned.

Any great university is a living refutation of the axiom that the whole is equal to the sum of its parts. Deans and faculty members inevitably take the separate colleges and departments more seriously than do the students or the public at large. It is, therefore, a healthy editorial policy which seeks to forevision a larger University. But since we are expected to deal with this from the viewpoint of the college, it is pertinent to point out a "dream" or two that our own faculty have for the future. The foremost of these is that we may develop a new unit for the training of junior high school teachers. With the rapid growth of such schools in the state this is much needed. Another is the creation of a department of Rural School Administration and Supervision with the function of furnishing to the state a progressive leadership in the upbuilding of rural schools, both elementary and secondary. More than four-fifths of the teachers of the state are in rural situations and the rural problem still remains our greatest unsolved problem in American education. The University cannot afford to ignore this fact.

A third dream of our young and ambitious college is that of extending our services beyond the academic confines of our campus. The improvement of teachers in service has come to be quite as much a function of the universities as the training of teachers for service. In the organization of extension courses in curriculum revision and in the adding of a Director of Research, whose services are available to public school systems, we have, this year, made a significant beginning in this direction. But it should be understood to be merely a beginning. If the University is to serve the schools of the State in any adequate way, it will be necessary not only to offer correspondence courses as it is doing, but to have at least one full-time extension instructor at work, offering advanced courses for teachers in service in the various school systems.

DEAN J. O. CREAGER

College of Engineering

DEAN WILLIAM N. GLADSON

WERE I privileged to design an engineering college suitable to all the needs of the state and commensurate with the importance of this great applied science, I would call for an appropriation of not less than ten million dollars for buildings and equipment.

I would construct a standard-gauge railway track from the Frisco siding to our power-plant site, which should be located on Dickson Street, just south of the present plant. I would equip this railway with an electrical locomotive sufficiently large to haul two loaded freight cars up the grade. The power house would provide machinery for generating all of the power, heat and light which would be needed for all purposes by a greater university.

Near the power house, on one side, I would place the steam laboratory with modern equipment; on the other side, an engineering experiment station building, with power appliances and instruments for carrying on research work in every branch of Engineering.

Between the power house and the present Agricultural Building, I would construct the Engineering Building planned by the campus landscape architects, and equip its various departments with all modern appliances for effectively teaching all branches of Engineering. This new College of Engineering would call for an increase in the teaching personnel so that, for instance, instead of one man attempting to teach all of the subjects of Mechanical Engineering there would be four or five professors, eight to ten associate professors and fifteen to twenty instructors, each a specialist in his line, teaching one or two subjects and devoting some of his time to research in his field.

The Experiment Station Staff would be increased from one man to a corps of specially trained men in every branch of engineering. This Experiment Station would be a potent factor in the industrial development of our state, which is just beginning, and the Engineering College would provide training in all lines so that no young man need go outside of the state to obtain an engineering education.

College of Agriculture

THE College of Agriculture in the University of Arkansas is not organized in a way similar to the organizations of the other colleges of that University. Some of the colleges are organized primarily for teaching. Other colleges have brought forces together for both teaching and research. But the College of Agriculture attempts to do three things—first, to teach resident students; second, to do research work in agriculture and home economics; third, to carry the college to the farm people of the state through the extension service. Consequently, the College of Agriculture is divided into three main divisions.

One of these divisions is known as the Agricultural Experiment Station. The body of scientists belonging to this staff devote time solving problems too expensive and too difficult for the individual farmer to solve. In all, the college has approximately thirty-five workers associated with this station. The object of the Agricultural Experiment Station is to discover new facts.

Another division of the College of Agriculture is the College proper—this being the activity having to do with the teaching of resident students. This is the phase of the College with which the students of the University are most familiar, since teaching affairs can be seen by all. This part of the duties of the College is conducted just as other teaching matters of the school. It deals with the resident students, therefore, undertakes to discover and develop new agricultural leadership.

The third division of the College consists of extension work in agriculture and home economics. While the average student of the campus sees little of this part of our work, still it consists of nothing but simple teaching. The students taught, however, are not upon the campus. These students are out on the farms and in farm homes—men and women who are too old to come to the campus, and boys and girls who are too young. In all, there are about 130 men and women attached to the Agricultural Extension Service, all of whom are busy teaching farm men and farm women of the state about farming and home making.

DEAN DAN T. GRAY

School of Medicine

DR. FRANK VINSONHALER

THE School of Medicine is located at Little Rock. Like Cornell and other great educational institutions, the clinical advantages of a city are regarded as a requisite for efficient medical teaching. This year marks its half-century of existence, and it has progressed with the advancement in medicine that has exemplified the most wonderful development in its history.

Sixty-five teachers are on its staff. The first two years of training are given in the building which was formerly the State Capitol Building, but is now known as the War Memorial Building, and the last two years are taught at Second and Sherman Streets.

There is a free clinic maintained, known as the Isaac Folsom Clinic, where an average of one hundred and twenty-five patients are treated daily. The personnel of the clinical staff includes five internists, two surgeons, a member representing the special branches, a roentgenologist, two bacteriologists and a laboratory technician. In addition to the regular dispensary service, the staff yearly examines approximately fifteen hundred waiters, butchers, candy makers and food handlers of all classes for the protection of the public against disease. Co-operation with the city and county health officers require a special tuberculosis and dental service.

It is expected that this year extension work will be done in various towns of the state on a more extended scale than was done last year.

In going out over the state and country in the practice of medicine, graduates of the Medical School become missionaries of it. This is one factor given as a reason for the continued growth of the Little Rock branch of the University. With the steady increase in the graduate output has come a steady increase in prestige. Ranking has been granted the Medical School equal to the best in the country. However, the school will continue to grow with the "Greater University" in equipment, in buildings, and in enrollment.

School of Business Administration

THE School of Business Administration was established three years ago as a step in the University's plan of expansion to produce a well-balanced state university. The new school was built on the Department of Economics and Sociology, existent since 1897, and now included as the main feature of the pre-commerce course in the Business School.

In addition to a broad cultural program in economics and sociology, the division has four professional curricula: accounting and statistics, banking and finance, production management, and marketing. These general courses, and a number of specialized courses, such as Real Estate, Insurance, and Public Utilities, offer to the young men of Arkansas a thorough training in modern business principles and practice.

During the short period of operation, the Business School has met with a hearty response. This year, over 200 men were registered in the University as commerce and pre-commerce students; class registrations exceeded 1,250, more than double the number three years ago. The teaching staff is made up of experts in their respective fields. The School is being operated in conformity with the high standards of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The School grants the degree of B. S. in Business Administration and gives the work necessary for the B. A. in Economics and Sociology. In three years twenty-eight men have graduated in Business and nineteen in Economics and Sociology. These graduates are located throughout the United States and in foreign countries, but the greatest number are in Arkansas. All are engaged in constructive work in accounting, manufacturing, public utilities, insurance, banking, merchandising and newspaper work.

Arkansas, long considered a dominantly agricultural state, now looks toward commerce and industry for future progress in well-being. A reliable survey reveals that in 1928, industry and commerce contributed as much to the purchasing power of the people of Arkansas as did agriculture. The continued industrial development of this state will depend in large measure upon business leadership. Business training and initiative joined with an efficient labor reserve and the natural resources of the state will make for steady economic progress.

DEAN CHARLES C. FICHTNER

Dean of Men

DEAN G. E. RIPLEY

THE offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women go hand in hand. Each is helpful to the other, and credit for many of the accomplishments ordinarily given to one of the offices should be given to both, as one without the other would work at a great disadvantage.

It would be hard, in the limited space that is allowed us in the Razorback, to enumerate the number of things that have been accomplished in the past six years, so we shall confine ourselves to the three that seem most important to the University.

This year, fraternities and sororities are required to make certain grade averages. If they do not come up to these expectations they are put on probation just as the individual student and remain so until the average is raised. This is proving a successful "try-out."

We have also a functioning student government which has charge of all student social affairs. The Student Senate appoints a special committee to set all social dates. This is the first time in the history of the school that such an idea has been carried out, and the success of the plan is shown by the high morals now existing on the campus.

The third of these problems is concerned with the personal work. A comparison of today with six years ago proves that this work has grown rapidly. The number of students coming to this office daily of their own volition, who seek advice, who offer suggestions, and who manifest interests in campus problems, shows that efforts along these lines have not been in vain.

The works of this office shall go on. It is its aim to develop in the youth true manhood; to prepare him for the battles that he must fight and to leave embedded in his soul a deep feeling for his school so that when he is sailing upon life's sea he can look back to the University of Arkansas and say:

"I'm proud to claim you my Alma Mater."

Dean of Women

INCREASED interest in scholarship on the part of the student body seems to me to be the most encouraging feature of development of the University of Arkansas at the present time.

This is evidenced in a variety of ways. The large proportion of students admitted to honor groups each semester is proof that, in spite of a full schedule of social activities, the University of Arkansas student stresses intellectual pursuits.

The Librarian in the reference library told me recently that there is let out from that library alone an average of one book per minute during the hours when books are available.

If in its essence a university is a place for the "communication and circulation of thought" and if "books are one special instrument in this process," in this particular we are evidently fulfilling the requirements of a university.

No fair consideration of the growth of the University can be made without reference to the three new departments which have been recently added: the Schools of Law and of Commerce and the Graduate School. These departments have not only broadened the scope of the University, but, by offering opportunities for specialization and advanced degrees, are attracting students of definite purpose and ability whose standards are stimulating to the undergraduates.

Other evidences of growth are the building program, the extension department, and the work which is being done in research.

All these things indicate that a "Better Yet Campaign" is well under way and are forecasts of continued expansion and of increased usefulness to the community and to the State.

The "Greater University of Arkansas" will not come in a day or a year. It will be the result of a great amount of labor, careful thinking, and skillful management. However, there is joy in pursuit as well as satisfaction in possession, and in this manner the generation that plans and initiates our greater school will be justly rewarded.

WITH renewed interest shown in last year's election, student government received a new impetus and a few things constructive were accomplished during the year.

We of the Student Senate took office this year pledged to frame a new constitution to replace the old one which was vaguely verbose, far too idealistic, and which had long since served its usefulness. This we have done. Embodied in its by-laws is the Social Committee, which we hope will evolve into some sort of student judicial body. Although the scope of its powers has been of necessity limited during its test period, we feel that only through some such body can the antagonism encountered between students and administration be coped with. Suffice it to say, that the Discipline Committee has not sat in extra session a single time this year, where it so frequently did last year.

Equal representation on the Publications Committee has been gained through the passage of the new constitution; its powers have been so strengthened that it is now the ranking student-faculty committee. We hope it will pave the way for a like representation upon the Athletic Committee.

For the first time in several years, Arkansas was represented at the Mid-West Student Conference. Besides this, Arkansas was admitted to membership in the National Student Federation of America, whose association with other bodies, such as the Confederation Internationale of Paris, gives it world-wide scope. Although contact with such organizations gives us a broader viewpoint, and many ideas may be absorbed by delegates to them, results can only be accomplished through a proper sentiment on the part of the student body.

THE Carnall Hall Governing Board is the discipline committee of the girls' dormitory, consisting of girls who reside in the dormitory. It has been a functioning unit of that institution since the establishment of student government in the University of Arkansas.

The Board is composed of representatives from each class elected in proportionate number by the girls who live in Carnall. Its purpose is to promote a feeling of responsibility among the girls, to administer discipline, and to look after their welfare.

Among its duties are the staging of dances and social events; keeping down unnecessary noise; seeing that one does not use the telephone more than the limited number of minutes.

"GUM-BOOT COURT" meets every Tuesday night for the purpose of assessing fines on those who have broken the laws of the dormitory during the previous week. It is unlike civil court, inasmuch as it does not convict on circumstantial evidence, and only those whom the "Gum-Boots" have caught are fined. Another duty of the Councilman is to inspect the rooms of the boys who live at the dormitories. These inspections are made each Saturday and those who do not keep their rooms in proper shape are fined.

All dormitory dances, dinner dates, and social functions are in charge of this council and they co-operate with the Matron in preserving order and good will among the residents.

The councilmen are elected every year by those living in the dormitory; three being elected from Buck Hall and one from Hill Hall.

STUDENT dances were operated this year for the first time under the supervision of a Student Social Committee. Conduct at dances, finances, arrangement of student dance dates, orchestras, and all other details were left in the hands of the committee, which was appointed at the beginning of the school year by Frank McBride, president of the student senate.

Surplus funds were utilized to send students to the national conventions, as follows: Leon Catlett, to the Mid-West Student Conference at Cincinnati; Flournoy Price and Porter Grace, to the National Student Federation of America, at Columbia, Missouri.

Under the new constitution adopted by popular ballot in the spring elections of this year, provision is made in the by-laws for the continuance of the Student Social Committee.

As regards dates for dances, the committee has worked in co-operation with fraternities and other groups. In this manner the students of the University have had dances of some desirable sort practically every Friday and Saturday nights in the season allowed for dances by the University.

Those Gone Before

The Senior Walk

(By Chicken Farmer)

There she stands lording over
The slab from her door;
The names of her children
Who have gone on before:
The children of college
Who have grown into age,
But whose names shall remain
Upon this stone page?

Down life's hardened walk
They are walking today;
For the next generation
They are paving a way;
And when they cross over
With tremor and groan,
We'll find their names printed
On life's walking stone.

Each thing that they do
Leaves its impression there;
Impressions of good,
Of evil, or fair;
But when they pass on
To serve us no more,
We class them as children
Who have gone before.

She stands there with pride,
Alma Mater of years;
Each class that goes out
Parts from her with tears;
But they leave on the slab,
That leads from her door,
Their names for remembrance
When they have gone before.

CLASSES

The Old and the New. Soon the Old will be but a memory. Already it is a souvenir. Time brings many changes. This is one. For many years the Old has served the students of Agriculture. But it is subsidiary now. The new edifice is the most recent unit of a Greater University—an infant two years old.

CLASS OF 1929

IN SEPTEMBER, 1925, there was inaugurated at the University of Arkansas the policy of holding a three-day orientation period for all prospective freshmen. At this time there came to the campus "the cream of the youth" of Arkansas who were to make up the Class of 1929. Old Grads spoke of college spirit and of the things that were to be required. Therefore when College Night came and dissention arose among the upperclassmen concerning the hike, the Freshmen decided to go on the hike themselves with the aid of several older men. Thus we helped to keep alive one of the oldest traditions of the school. Buel Rose led the Class in its first year, being assisted by Mary Ripley, Bernice Box, and Arthur Hale.

Having grown accustomed to the ways of University life, many of the erstwhile Freshmen returned the next September as wise and confident Sophomores. Members of the Class carried their full share on the athletic field, the gymnasium floor, the debating platform, and in the classroom. The Class was presided over by Ward Dunlap, while Vida Mae Holderness, Mary Ripley, and Roy White completed the roll of officers.

The Class returned for its Junior year to find that the new Agricultural and Engineering Buildings were being occupied. This made life pleasanter for many and was an added incentive to better things. Many leaders had developed from the Class of '29 and these now took their places in the affairs of the campus. Charles Frierson piloted the Class, his mates being Frances Crutcher, Arthur Hale, and Frank McBride.

When the Class returned for its final year it was evident that many faces which had been present three years before were missing. College life is a severe test and many fall by the wayside. The Class of '29 is nevertheless the largest that has ever been graduated from the institution.

The Class is particularly proud that during its stay in the University, four consecutive Southwest Conference Basket Ball Championships have been won. Three of its members, Gene Lambert, Arthur Hale, and Harold Eidson, have done much to bring this about during the last three years. Lambert has also distinguished himself by winning four varsity letters in one year, this having been accomplished only once before in the history of the school. The Class also contributed its full share to other sports. Another outstanding achievement has been the winning by the rifle team of two consecutive Hearst Trophies in competition with all schools of the country.

We are proud of our record during the four years we have been on the campus and feel that we are much better equipped to journey forth in search of our welfare and happiness. We bid farewell to our Alma Mater, hoping that she may ever continue to grow and enrich our beloved State of Arkansas.

JUNIOR

Class of 1930

PORTER GRACE

OFFICERS

PORTER GRACE	President
FLOURNOY PRICE	Vice-President
MARTHA HATHCOCK	Secretary
WARREN WOOD	Treasurer

WE, OF the class of 1930, feel that we are the most fortunate class in College. We enjoy life, no matter whether the rain pours, or the sun shines. We are humiliated by the ignorance which overshadowed our freshman year; we are not burdened with the dignity which was so heavy during our sophomore year; and we are not saddened, as are the Seniors, by thoughts of happy days that are to be no more and of serious days in the life ahead.

To athletics, publications, scholastic and honorary organizations, and to activities of all kinds, we have furnished more than our quota. To the University of Arkansas which has been our home the past three years, we have endeavored to give our very best. "A Greater University" has been our slogan and creed. May our small bit be a substantial rung in the ladder of advancement.

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

Footprints on the campus! What a privilege it is for us to pass this way, to tread this path; yet, what are we leaving behind us? Are we making our footsteps permanent?

It has been our aim to make our steps so deep, so lasting, that nothing worthwhile would be erased. We see plainly the goal before us, and we trust our footprints may be such that others may be guided by them. May they be to the footsore students behind us as a highway to the desert traveler—a guide, a relief from weary searching.

We therefore pledge ourselves, oh Alma Mater, to forge ahead, keeping this purpose always in mind. The splendid example set by many students who have gone before will be our incentive, and will keep us from treading on the shifting sands of desert land, where footsteps quickly fade away.

DO WE believe in evolution? Well, yes. You see we have our reasons and they are logical ones. We entered the University in the Fall of 1927, the greenest bunch of Freshmen that ever trod the northwest section of Arkansas. We were laughed at, hooted, strapped and forced to wear those symbolic green caps. Through that eventful year we ascended, studying hard, and at last through the process of evolution we emerged into another year, not the same, but evolutionized to a more intellectual class.

Now we come to the close of another year, the half-way mark of our college career. As we near that milestone and gaze back over the past we can see that our university life is far from a failure. The Class has made history; it shall go down on the records as a great body and truly it is one. We profit from the past and prepare for a continuance of success on the remainder of our journey across the sea that we now are called to span.

Who knows what great men our Class might produce? The University of Arkansas, in the past, has produced some men of national fame. The trend is upward, history does repeat itself, so it is with logical reasoning that we draw that conclusion.

It is our aim to work in the future as we have in the past—to continue through the process of evolution so that in 1931 we can look back over the dark ages and say with a smile:

“Maybe Darwin was right to some extent.”

Yet, in our evolution we believe that we can safely say that we have stood for one thing above all else, and that is a “Greater University of Arkansas.” All our endeavors have been in that direction and we have helped push the trend line of progress across the Graph of Success. As we continue through our course of studies and finally step out into the world as graduates from the best school in America we hope to say to the public that we have contributed to the growth of the “GREATER UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS.”

Spoofers Stone

Spoofers Stone

(By Chicken Farmer)

She's seen the ages pass their way,
 She's heard the wild beasts yell,
 She's seen the Indians gathered there
 Their woeful tales to tell.
 She's had the lovers pass her throne,
 She's been their seat for years:
 She's laughed with them in joyous sound,
 She's shed with them her tears.
 She's witnessed there the sacred kiss,
 And sorrowed o'er false love—
 Old Spoofer, that one sacred spot
 'Neath skies of God above.

She takes the chills of winter's snow,
 She takes the beat of hail,
 She sleeps while north winds fiercely blow
 Their screechy weary tale.
 But she awakes when leaves shoot out
 Upon the campus hill;
 When water bubbles from the spring
 That once was frozen still.
 Yes, she awakes to greet the youth
 Who nears her beauty scene;
 She serves a throne where king doth bow
 To honor beauty's queen.

Awake, Old Spoofer! Wintry winds
 Have many weeks been gone;
 The screechy cricket in yon hedge
 Has melody of song.
 The little squirrel shoots up and down
 From his home in the tree;
 The crescent moon smiles merrily
 Upon the world and me.
 Awake, Old Spoofer! Sleep no more!
 For bluebirds now all sing;
 The Winter's coldness is replaced
 By the warm love of Spring.

FRESHMAN

Class of 1932

G. C. TROUT

CLASS OFFICERS

G. C. TROUT	President
DAPHNE DAILEY	Vice-President
REVEL SPARKS	Secretary
ROBERT FINCHER	Treasurer

DATE tickets, Bath House tickets, Knights of Sorrow; the Freshman of '29 has bought them all, joined them all, and served faithfully his Sophomore apprenticeship. He came to the University fresh out of high school thinking that he knew it all and awakened in college to find that the further he traveled on the path of knowledge the wider the field became.

He entered the University with a purpose of laying a foundation; the first pillars have been put into their place and he looks forward to the coming of another year when he will be considered something other than the insignificant symbol of perpetual greenness.

The Class of '32 will make history for the University of Arkansas. During its brief flight through college life, traditions will be made and broken. Before its last members leave that institution, the Legislature will have met again and he will graduate realizing that efforts for a "Greater University" have not been in vain.

The future for the class is bright. It has some notable members who possess remarkable talents. These, in time, will be recognized as campus leaders and their names shall go down in University history.

After all, we all have to be Freshmen whether in the University of Arkansas or in the University of Hard-Knocks. It is no disgrace, for it is only the lower round of a ladder that ascends to higher altitudes. From a rail-splitter, Lincoln ascended to the president's chair. This being possible, it is not impossible for the dumbest of Freshmen to walk from any university with a degree.

Before the Class of 1932 gives its parting word there stands out one thing that we wish to impress. That one thing is our ambition, our dream, and our vision: the motif of the Razorback of 1929 which is a "GREATER UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS." We have a greater opportunity than the classes above us for we are in a position to profit by their examples. The big program is new—and so are we. Thus, we can grow up together and when the next generation enters beneath that lofty campanile into a greater Campus we may tell the newcomers with both pride and pleasure that we helped make it what it was—we were with it from the beginning.

LAW

Associated Law Students

ERIC CAVINESS

ERIC CAVINESS	President
JEFF DONATHAN	Vice-President
LEON CATLETT	Secretary

THE Law School is one of the youngest colleges on the campus. The first class was graduated in 1927. Though young, it is fast becoming one of our strongest schools. We have a library of approximately 10,000 volumes. Under the administration of Dean J. S. Waterman the Law School has been recognized as a grade A school and admitted to the American Association of Law Colleges.

The recent session of the Arkansas Legislature passed a bill which provides that all graduates of the Law School may be admitted to the practice in Arkansas without taking the Bar examination.

Practically every graduate of the Law School is practicing in Arkansas. The success of these men speaks well for the thoroughness of the legal training they have received.

Phi Alpha Delta, one of the leading Legal Fraternities, has a chapter here which is rapidly becoming very strong. Other Nationals are planning to establish chapters here in the near future. In 1928 the Estoppel Club was organized. It is patterned after the Order of Coif, which is the Phi Beta Kappa of law schools.

The Associated Law Students is an organization composed of all the law students. Its purpose is to secure the united efforts of all the law students on any proposition concerning our general welfare.

The future looks very bright for the Law School. Without boasting I think we can truthfully say that the University of Arkansas Law School is the best school in the country for those who intend to practice in Arkansas and in addition it offers as strong a general law course as any school in the country.

Today our Auditorium seats a scant 600 —barely one-half the roll of the school. Yet, in that Greater University of Arkansas, thousands may mingle in the spacious amphitheatre and enjoy a fellowship together. No embarrassment will be felt then in displaying a student-body assembled.

Homecoming!

The biggest one day of the year. Gongs sounded, horns tooted, babies squalled—the whole town went wild.

A big parade opened activities. Outstanding features were the beautiful Pi Phi float and the novel Kappa float.

Delta Betas carried off the honors on floats with their Homecoming Special. Other features of the day were the crowds, the game, the antics of the freshmen, and entertainment furnished by the band and drum corps.

*Fayetteville is beautiful in winter and gorgeous in spring.
Winter sports consist of sledding and snowballing.*

Summer or winter, day or night,
Fayetteville retains its rustic beauty.

Spring sports are hiking, swimming, and campustry.

Houses were well decorated this year on Homecoming Day.

Women's organizations, especially the Rootin' Rubes and the Girls' Drum Corps added much to Homecoming and other days.

"Bevo" Beavers, Arkansas' human piledriver, was voted the most outstanding player in the Southwest. The Frisco station was a riot when the Christmas Special rolled in.

The dance is ended but the memory lingers on.

Mitchell's Orchestra was the outstanding resident orchestra of the year. Students celebrated the opening of the second semester to the tune of Benny Moten's Kansas City Victor Recording Orchestra.

The S.P.E. dance was a Little Rock social event of the holidays.

"On with the dance! Let joy be unconfined."

The Globe Trotters, under the direction of Earl Donathan, furnished music for many of the student dances.

Engineers' (above right) and Agri hops were both outstanding social events of the year.

Lower Right: Colonel and Mrs. George Streepy leading the grand march of the military ball.

Two big banquets: Inter-Frat (opposite page) and Gridiron (right).

Feature dancers seen on the opposite page and on the right on this page, contributed to the entertainments of the year. They are Misses Frances Stone and Mabel Claire Gold respectively.

Engineers' Day and St. Pat rules supreme.

That night even the Engineers' Building was lit up.

Kenneth Schoephoester of Cotton Plant, and Annabel Allen of Fayetteville acted the parts of St. Pat and Queen.

Agri Day—The event in their lives for the farmers of the school—and also for everybody else.

Ruth Pearce of Magnolia was queen and reigned over all activities of the day. Earl Whiting of Gillette was Agri Day manager and was ably supported by Grover Kincaid of North Little Rock as assistant.

Other views show the Agri Day committee and floats of the queen and of the Agronomy and Horticulture departments.

This day was Friday, April 26.

The Purpose of Who's Who

WHO'S WHO was started in the 1923 Razorback—"The Razorback that's different." In that issue, as an introduction to Who's Who, the editor-in-chief wrote: "Feeling a need for some means of recognition for those students who stand out as leaders in their school activities, it was decided to inaugurate a student Who's Who section in the 1923 Razorback. The principle on which selection for this honor was based was leadership in campus activities."

The writer was in close touch with the editor-in-chief of that book, as he has been with all the succeeding editors, and he has watched with interest the results of that Who's Who section. He has seen many exciting times over its "evolution," the climax coming with the 1927 edition.

There has slowly evolved a better and more just method of making the selection of those students who should be counted in Who's Who. However, I doubt if any method can ever be devised that will prevent criticism. For example, all students whom the writer thought deserved places in the 1929 Who's Who did not get them and a few for whom he did not vote were elected. No one is perfect.

The present method, whereby five faculty members appointed by the staff, meet and select five students, whom the faculty members feel should be in Who's Who, gives a committee of five faculty members and five prominent students. This committee meets and selects thirty students to constitute a Who's Who section of thirty-five students. The writer believes this about as fair a method as could be devised.

The Razorback of 1929

MEANS WILKINSON
Editor-in-Chief

ANY publication that would have its influence felt must carry with it an editorial policy. We have attempted to get our policy in step with the University's interests at the present time and aid in our humble way the promotion of the "Greater University of Arkansas."

We realized at the beginning of the year that ballyhoo, like charity, begins at home, and that the first thing to plan in our extension program was "A Greater Razorback for a Greater University of Arkansas." Around this objective we built our motif.

Much has been accomplished this year—much more than the general public realizes. The Legislature has removed our bonded indebtedness of $650,000, and with it went the annual interest fees of approximately $50,000. More striking than the material assistance given by the Legislature was the spirit shown by that body in behalf of the University, and in the session to meet in 1931 an appropriation for our building program is almost inevitable.

We have initiated for the freshmen a Freshman Queen. We have removed baseball from major sports in order to devote more attention to the three typical and natural college activities—football, basket ball and track. Our feature section has been increased at the expense of the bungle-some and unadvertising Hog Wallow and Day sections. It has been our ambition to remove the Razorback from the college-annual class and place it in the university class.

In conclusion, we wish to especially acknowledge the following people for their efforts and co-operation in making this volume of the RAZORBACK possible: Mr. R. C. Walker of the Southwestern Engraving Co. at Tulsa; Mr. Bennett L. Woolley of Hugh Stephens Press of Jefferson City, and those students, Dick Lewis, who designed the cover of this book, and Lester Farmer, who has given invaluable assistance to the Editor and Associate Editor with copy and ideas.

The Arkansas Traveler

Official Newspaper of the University of Arkansas

MABEL CLAIRE GOLD
Editor-in-Chief

STUDENTS and faculty members of the University of Arkansas are kept informed as to the activities of the campus through the medium of The Arkansas Traveler, a seven-column, weekly newspaper published by a staff selected from members of the student body.

A high standard of journalistic efficiency has been the policy of the 1928-1929 Traveler. Higher standards of scholarship and character for all students have been emphasized through the editorial columns. The Traveler has taken an active part in promoting all activities which work toward the development and growth of the University of Arkansas.

The Traveler has co-operated closely with the Journalism department this year by rewarding those who have shown particular interest and ability in the work by giving them places on the staff. In this way, a more unified and efficient corps of workers has been at the command of the editor. The desk staff was selected from the members of the copy-editing class, and the reporters were picked from those students studying the fundamentals of news gathering and writing.

Balanced front-page make-up has been a constant feature of the Traveler this year, but enough variety has been used to prevent monotony and to play up the important stories.

Besides general interest in student publications, the Press Club has given interest to outside events. Notable among these was the Gridiron Banquet of March 25, when, following the model of the famous Washington, D. C., affair, 100 of the most prominent students and faculty members were guests of the Club at the Washington Hotel. At the banquet, a live porker, a wild razorback, presented by an alumnus in Louisiana, was given the most outstanding student of the University. Wear Schoonover of Pocahontas received the pig, faculty members of professional rank and above making the selection by secret ballot.

ATHLETICS

From the decaying pine-board Negro bleachers just on the other side of the age-worn hanging gate—to a stadium comparable to few in existence—will be the athletic advancement in our Greater University of Arkansas. Schmidt's barn will long have been used for kindling wood and the steel of the stands re-made into crowbars.

BECAUSE of his untiring efforts for the past seven years to make our institution a "Greater University of Arkansas" in the world of major college sports; because he has brought honor to our Alma Mater and advertised it by his excelling athletic teams far and abroad; and because of our interest in his future, regardless of his whereabouts, we cheerfully lay this Athletic section of the Razorback of 1929 at the feet of

COACH
FRANCIS A. SCHMIDT

Coaches

FRANCIS A. SCHMIDT

"SCHMIDDY" has rounded out his seventh year as head coach and director of athletics at Arkansas with an enviable record. The former Nebraska Cornhusker star athlete piloted the Arkansas basket ball quintet to their fourth straight conference title, and produced a highly successful football team during the past year. With meager resources at his command, Schmidt has placed athletics at Arkansas on a par with the large universities of the west and south. He carries a host of Razorback good will with him to his new post at T. C. U.

FRED THOMSEN

"Tommie," another Cornhusker star, has won the position as one of Arkansas' most popular coaches. This year, he was assistant football director, head coach of track and director of intramural athletics. Because of his success in these branches of sport during his two years here, he has been elected to fill the place left vacant by Schmidt.

JEFF FARRIS

The most important duty confronting Farris is that of moulding the Freshmen huskies who report for football into future Razorbacks. In the fall the job of scouting enemy elevens is also intrusted to his care. In the winter and spring he directs Freshman basket ball and varsity baseball. Farris will not return next season.

CAPT. GUY KINMAN

"Captain" spends all of his time not required by his military duties helping with the Freshmen squads.

CLIFFORD SHAW

"Cliff," who plays baseball in the summer, spends the fall and winter assisting the staff.

JEFF RUCKER

Jeff Rucker, a former Porker star, assisted in coaching the Frosh football squad.

THE ATHLETIC COUNCIL

The problems of finance, eligibility, and awarding of letters are solved for the athletic department by a council of five faculty members and three students. The faculty members are appointed by the president while the student members are elected by a vote of the student body.

Since the inauguration of the committee system, athletics have been placed on a firmer financial basis. Prof. B. N. Wilson has supervised the expenditures of this department for twenty-one years.

Resume of the Season

ALVA WINTERS, Captain
All-Conference Mention

For the fourth consecutive season a lineman has led the Razorbacks into battle. The 1928 Porkers placed their faith in Alva Winters of Traskwood. "Cap" alternating at guard and tackle for three years reached the height of gridiron glory this season by adding to his stellar defense work, a heads-up, aggressive player. Captain Winters was at his best this year against Baylor, Texas A. and M. and Texas U., which gained for him honorable mention on the all-conference selection.

THE season of 1928 was a highly successful one for the Razorbacks. The first three games were played in weather more suitable for baseball than football which, together with the late arrival of several veterans, caused a slow start. As the season moved along the team gathered momentum until the aggregation of Coaches Schmidt and Thomsen was termed by critics—not a team, but a machine.

Only three Southwestern Conference teams saw fit to place Arkansas on their schedules, so the annual classic with Louisiana State was allowed as a conference game. Our athletic officials were forced to seek games in four states outside the circuit to make a total of nine clashes.

The season opened with the Razorbacks going down to "Ole Miss" to drop the opener by a 25 to 0 score. On the following Saturday Coach Harry Hansard, a former Porker star, brought his College of the Ozarks Mountaineers to Schmidtdom for a 21 to 0 defeat. The Razorbacks then moved downstate to Texarkana to take the measure of the highly touted Baylor Bears 14 to 0. In rapid succession came the remaining conference games, Texas University, Texas A. and M., and Louisiana State. The only conference defeat was at the hands of the champion Texas Longhorns. A determined bunch of Porkers upheld Arkansas' record of winning Home-coming games by giving Texas A. and M., the 1927 champions the small end of a 27-12 score. In nine games played the Razorbacks scored 251 points to their opponents' 63, with "Bevo" Beavers leading his mates and the conference in individual scoring with 84 points. Five of the clashes were played away from home and included games with members of six conferences.

Captain Alva Winters and Sub-Captain Garland Beavers were the lettermen to add a third stripe to their football sweaters. Captain-Elect Geise, Adams, Crabaugh, Gardner, Kerby, Lambert, Miller, Moore, Schoonover, Van Sickle, Williams, and Wren earned their second gridiron letters, while Buckalew, Creighton, Dale, Hays, Holmes, Uptmoor, and Wise gained their first varsity letter through sterling play during the season.

Record of Games

An all-state high school selection in Louisiana came to Arkansas in 1926 to pilot the yearling team for the Ozark boys. Because of his ability to co-ordinate the action of his head and feet, Clarence Geis has developed into one of Arkansas' greatest quarterbacks. From any position on the field, against any opponent, he knows what trick will net the greatest gain. His generalship with his good record of service caused his teammates to intrust to him the Captaincy of the 1929 eleven.

Although the Red and Blue machine of "Ole Miss" was forced back into the shadow of its own goal three times, the Southerners and the heat waves from a boiling sun sent the Razorbacks back to the hills on the low end of a 25 to 0 score. Playing without the services of quarterback

Geis, the Porkers held their own against the heavy veteran team for the first half. One by one, the Arkansas lads seemed to lose vitality. But despite their condition and frequent substitutions, the boys from the Ozarks rallied brilliantly in the third period with a dazzling aerial attack that all but swept the Southerners off their feet. The bullet-like passing of Miller and the line-plunging of McGregor, a substitute back, featured for Arkansas.

COLLEGE OF THE OZARKS

With weather more suitable for baseball, the Razorbacks opened their home season the following Saturday with a 21 to 0 win over Harry Hansard's Mountaineers. The teams battled on even terms for the first quarter, after which the Hogs tallied in each period. Sub-captain Beavers bore the brunt of the Arkansas offensive attack and on nearly every try hung up a substantial gain. Miller was on the hurling end of the Arkansas passes and played well on the offensive. Uptmoor, a substitute, carried the ball well for the Porkers, and Dale netted substantial gains. Wise led the Porker linemen in the defensive by more than taking care of one of the wing positions. Captain Winters and Lambert turned many Mountaineer plays into losses. Pearson and Ralston were outstanding in the backfield of the losing team.

BAYLOR UNIVERSITY

All that glitters is not gold, so it was in Grimm Stadium at Texarkana when a field of Baylor Gold waved majestically before the game, but drooped as the Cardinal of Arkansas rose to its height and became the real color scheme of the day. The Bears, with the best material in years, who late beat S. M. U., who had held the Army to a 13 to 14 score, were doped by supporters and sport critics to find easy going against Arkansas. Baylor won the toss and chose the goal with the wind to their backs. "Tiny" Gardner, giant Porker tackle, overcame this handicap by sending the first kickoff deep into Baylor territory. The heavy Arkansas line aided by the sterling line-backing of Jack Dale kept Baylor fighting with their backs to their own goal for the first quarter. With Gardner and Captain Winters proving stalwarts in the line and "Bevo" Beavers a ramrod in the backfield, the Porkers took the ball over the goal towards the close of the second period. Arkansas' greatest gains were made on fake plunges and spins, except they did more plunging than spinning. Starting another drive goalward late in the third quarter, Arkansas carried the ball to the four-yard line as the period ended. Beavers carried it across on the first play of the final period. The rest of the tussle was confined to the middle of the field, with the Porkers playing a defensive game.

Coach Schmidt, in discussing the game, spoke well of the Arkansas line, mentioning the good work of Buckelew at center, Gardner and Captain Winters at tackle, Van Sickle and Wise at guard, and Lambert at end. Schoonover turned in a game at end that gained all-conference recognition. Miller and Beavers scored a touchdown each and Dale kicked the two extra points from placement.

THE RAZORBACK

TEXAS UNIVERSITY

Arkansas' great Razorback eleven invaded the sacred precincts of the Lone Star State on October 20th, and for 30 minutes or more had "the eyes of Texas" fixed anxiously upon the powerful Schmidt machine. A fighting bunch of Longhorns came back strong in the second half to shatter Arkansas hopes for a second conference win and sent the Hogs home on the short end of a 20 to 7 tally. Porker hopes ran high at the end of the first half when the Cardinal and White led by a 7 to 6 count. Texas tallied in the second period when Arkansas fumbled a Texas punt on their own five-yard line and a Longhorn covered the ball. King went over the Arkansas line for the counter. The Razorbacks took the lead in the same quarter when a march from the Texas 20-yard line ended with Beavers chalking up a touchdown and Dale kicking goal for the extra point.

Razorback joy was short-lived, however, for the Longhorns came into the second half with plenty of fight and two more fumbled punts resulted in as many touchdowns for the boys from Texas which cinched the game for them. Arkansas used a determined passing attack in the final period in an attempt to ward off defeat, but they found some difficulty in completing them. Texas used a running and passing attack that kept the Porkers on the defensive the greater part of the game.

The entire backfield of the Longhorns was outstanding, which is an explanation for them resting on top of the conference at the close of the season.

Lambert and Anglin were out of the game with injuries, leaving the wing positions somewhat weakened. Miller put plenty of speed in his passes to Beavers, Schoonover, and others. Uptmoor and Dale played well in the backfield, although the former did not see action until the last period.

TEXAS AGGIES

It was a determined Porker machine that faced the 1927 conference champions on October 27, to uphold the old tradition that Arkansas never loses Homecoming games. In keeping this record clean the Hogs employed a dazzling line-smashing and aerial attack and presented an almost impregnable forward wall that gave the Texas Cadets a 27 to 12 defeat, the biggest loss they had suffered for twelve years.

Garland Beavers, the human pile-driver and fullback, was the big gun of the Razorback offensive and crashed the Texas line twice in the first 30 minutes of battling for touchdowns before he was forced from the game with the first injury of his football career. With Beavers on the shelf, Miller opened his bullet-like passes to Schoonover, Lambert, Geis, and Holmes for long gains. To further show the 7,500 Homecoming fans their superiority over the Farmers, the Schmidtmens halted their attack in the air long enough to put over another marker on straight football.

Van Sickle, the fighting landlady, turned in one of the best games at tackle ever witnessed on the local field. Captain Winters continually kept rushing the Aggie passers and was down the field on every punt. Schoonover was the third of the trio of outstanding stars in the line, showing the form that led him to an all-conference berth. Lambert, Captain-Elect Geis, and Holmes were always waiting for the long passes from Miller which played an important factor in the game.

Alsabrook, Cadet end, scored both the Aggie's counters on completed passes, however, most of the Aggie passes failed to reach their destination, so well did the Razorback defense function. Time after time Dorsey would shoot a long pass down the field to see it grounded as alert Porkers got in the way.

LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY

An intercepted pass and a 55-yard dash to a touchdown by Jack Dale gave the University of Arkansas her sixth victory in seven years in the annual state fair classic at Shreveport. L. S. U., with an undefeated iron team, including eight three-year veterans, was de-

At the opening of the game the Porkers were napping and a "dead man play" let a man get away in an open field which would have resulted in a touchdown if the fleet-footed Brown could have outdistanced Miller. Four times were the Razorbacks in scoring distance in the second quarter. Two fumbles, a missed field goal, and an incomplete pass over the end zone resulted in a 0 to 0 tie at the end of the first half. In the third period Dale brought the 12,000 state fair visitors to their feet when he gathered in Brown's pass in midfield and aided by perfect blocking by big Joe Moore and Lambert raced fifty yards for a touchdown. He also added the point after touchdown to claim all the scoring honors in the 7 to 0 victory.

The Tigers opened an aerial attack in the final period, but the Arkansas defense functioned perfectly and pass after pass was grounded while the Bengals were kept well away from the Arkansas goal at all times.

Van Sickle was outstanding in the Razorback defensive line-up. Creighton returned to the game from injuries to aid Gardener and Schoonover in smearing the enemy plays. Beavers, Arkansas' all-conference fullback, shone on the offensive drives, as did Dale and Miller.

ing attack instead of the usual line plunging on the muddy field. Two touchdowns resulted from long passes over the goal line to Dale and Schoonover. The other five came as the result of line slashes and running plays by Beavers, Miller, Geis, Holmes and Uptmoor. Van Sickle, Gardner, and Winters worked well on the Arkansas defensive line-up and Kerby, playing his first full game at center, gave a creditable performance, especially on the defensive.

The last quarter was played almost entirely by second-team men who carried on the battle by claiming two of the touchdowns. Adams and Hays played good defensive games while Fondren and Uptmoor supplied most of the offensive punch.

OKLAHOMA BAPTIST UNIVERSITY

The Oklahoma College Champions of 1927 who had held Tulsa University to a tie on the previous Saturday were smothered by the Razorbacks with an avalanche of successful passes, sweeping end runs, and ripping line smashes to bring Arkansas' home season to a close with a 57 to 0 victory. The Crimson backs—Miller, Beavers, Dale, Geis, Holmes, Uptmoor—slashed and passed their way to 21 first downs. Miller topped the scoring with four markers, Beavers crossed the chalk line three times and Geis and Holmes made one touchdown each. Miller to Geis was the main enemy plays, tore up the Bisons' line, and dumped the secondary of the Oklahomans, so the Hog backs could end the home season in a blaze of glory.

SOUTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

In an exhibition of every kind of football conceivable, from straight line plunging to grabbing wild passes, the University of Arkansas steam roller known as a football team crushed Southwestern University under a 73 to 0 defeat to close the 1928 season.

Scoring 39 points in one period is an act indicative of the Razorback strength. Miller passed 50 yards to Schoonover for a touchdown. On the next play from scrimmage a pass to Creighton was good for a score. Two plays, two touchdowns. Three plays afterward Miller sailed across the line on a lateral pass, and four plays later Beavers had plunged across the line for a fourth, then a fifth—and Dale's criss-cross gave the sixth to close the period.

This game marked the final appearance of Captain Winters, the human pile-driver Beavers, Wise, Wren, Williams and Kerby. Each of these men added to their gridiron glory by turning in a good game to help crush the Southwestern Lynx, the final battle of the season.

Prospectus

JUST what position Arkansas will occupy in the Southwestern Conference football race next fall is more than a problem at present. Conference games have been scheduled with Baylor, Texas University and Texas A. and M. Officials have ruled that the Annual Classic with Louisiana State will not be allowed as a conference game as in previous years, so Arkansas seems to be out in the cold until the remaining Texas schools fulfill their contracts to meet the Razorbacks on their home field.

The loss of eight veterans will leave a big worry for Coach Thomsen and the second man on the coaching staff who is yet to be selected. Captain Alva Winters, Beavers, Wise, Wren, Williams, Kerby and Adams have served their time, and Holmes will probably not return to school next fall. In face of these losses Arkansas will be able to put a complete team of lettermen on the field next fall. A quartet of galloping backs, Captain-elect Geis, Miller, Dale and Uptmoor are due for one or more seasons in Porker gridiron togs, and a ton of linemen will return to make the going more easy for them. With such huskies as Sub-captain-elect Van Sickle, Schoonover, Buckelew, Lambert, Gardner, Crabaugh, Creighton, Hays, and Moore on hand, the Razorbacks should have one of the strongest lines in this section. Varnell, Finney, Hilton, Lile, Van Meter, and Harrison are reserve lettermen who will be available.

For the third straight season Coach Farris' Porkerettes lived through an undefeated year. Boasting a line average of 185 pounds and a galaxy of good backs, the little Porkers turned in victories over Ozark Wesleyan College and Oklahoma Junior College, and hooked up with the Varsity in almost daily scrimmages that will stand them in good for 1929 Varsity berths. The outstanding men on the Frosh squad who mixed brain and brawn with the Varsity throughout the fall, and who have reported to the Coaches for spring training are expected to add both strength and competition to the Razorbacks next fall. Secrest, Robison, Darr and Chambers are attracting attention as prospective linemen, with Ledbetter, Hensy and Kyle getting most of the backfield notice.

Twenty Freshmen were awarded numerals at the close of the season and seven others will receive their awards when they complete the spring training program. Numeral men include Alan Bradley, L. D. Butt, Joe Chambers, John Deason, Earl Darr, Leroy Hensy, Rex Houston, Ivan Jackson, W. H. Kyle, Le Roy Kelly, Jerome Lawhorn, Homer Ledbetter, Sol Lockwood, Dean Morley, Virgle Lyons, Jack Robison, Ralph Robinson, Bill Ruckman, Earl Secrest, Robert Wiseman, George Gates, Cecil Grooms, Earl Hodkins, Robert Stevenson, Charles Trapp, Hardy Wilborn, and Harry Layne.

Resume of the Season

CO-CAPTAIN TOM PICKELL
All-American Guard—All-Conference Center

For three years Tom Pickell has been voted the best center in the Southwest. Because of his height and alertness he always controlled the ball from tip-off and spoiled many games for the opposition by "hogging" the scoring column. "Tallying" Tom was runner-up for conference honors, losing the lead only in the last game of the year. Because of his consistent scoring ability, teamwork and leadership, his mates entrusted in him the Co-Captaincy of the 1929 championship quintet.

FOR the fourth straight time, the Arkansas Razorbacks, under the guiding hand of the basketball wizard, Coach Francis Schmidt, won the basketball championship of the Southwest Conference. Presenting a defense that was almost unbeatable, together with a whirlwind offense, the Razorbacks swept through the season in such machine-like precision as to gain the recognition of all basket ball fandom. Only one dark spot mars the splendid record of the championship cage quintet. The Texas Longhorns, recognized as Arkansas' most dangerous rivals, met the Champions on the evening that the resignation of Coach Schmidt was announced. This setback and the close guarding of the Arkansas scoring aces, Schoonover and Pickell, by the Texas guards gave the Hogs their only loss of the season.

Arkansas again played havoc with the conference records and honors. The team set a new scoring record for one game by chalking up 71 points against the Baylor Bears. Rice Institute gathered the low-score mark by making only 13 points against 44 for the champions in the second game of the series. Captain-elect Schoonover set a new individual scoring record for the conference when he looped eight field goals and ten free throws for a total of 26 points. Schoonover, Pickell, and Lambert were unanimously selected for the first conference team, and Hale and Holt were placed on the second mythical five. Pickell gained a berth on the All-American quintet at guard, and Schoonover was given honorable mention.

Varsity "A's" were awarded to Co-Captains Lambert and Pickell, Schoonover, Holt, Oliver, A. Hale, Prewitt, Creighton, Eidson, Pickren, and H. Hale.

PICKELL, Center

Record of Games

To fill the vacancy left by big Glen Rose at guard was the task before Gene Lambert during the past basket ball season. And he carried through as only his record can reveal. Gene was always on the ball when it bounced off the enemy blackboard, ready to dribble down the floor in a dogged way that was an inspiration to his men. Coupled with his defensive strength, Lambert possessed unusual ability in sinking long shots when the opposing guards expected him to pass. His mates honored him with the other half of the Co-Captaincy of the team.

THE schedule makers gave Arkansas a season opener of four games in five days. The champions got off to a flying start by making a clean sweep of the Texas invasion. Handicapped by the loss of rangy Tom Pickell, the scoring ace of the Southwest, the Porkers were forced to put up a hard fight to defeat the S. M. U. Mustangs in their initial conference tilt. Led by Jakie Schoonover, who netted 19 points, Arkansas won the game by a score of 32-26. The second meeting with the Methodist aggregation proved much easier for the Razorbacks and they looped the basket for 39 points while their opponents were making 17.

Gaining momentum as they rolled over the Lone Star state, the Arkansas looping machine handily took in the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University for two overwhelming victories. The score of the first game was 42 to 24, while the second game proved a rout for the Hogs and they hung up a new conference record of 66 points to 26 for the T. C. U. five.

While offering an almost perfect defense the Arkansas basketballers passed, dribbled and shot their way to a pair of overwhelming wins over the Baylor Bears by the scores of 57-24 and 71-23. The Baylor sharpshooters were limited to long shots by the close guarding of Co-Captain Lambert and Holt, while Schoonover, Pickell, and A. Hale, the Arkansas scoring aces, looped the Baylor basket at will. The Hogs again broke the conference scoring record by making 71 points to 23 by the opposition in the second game. In the first game Schoonover broke the individual scoring record for the conference when he looped eight field goals and ten free throws for a total of 26 points. Prewitt and Pickren also broke into the scoring column to aid in putting the Arkansas looping machine out in front of all opposition.

Drury College, a non-conference foe, gave Arkansas the best games seen on the local court this season. The Missouri lads were almost as rangy as the Porkers, they were the only performers on the home floor who jumped after the ball on equal terms with Schmidt's pupils. By winning the games 52-25 and 42-22, the Razorbacks demonstrated that they could function equally well against large and small fives.

Reckoned as Arkansas' outstanding rival for the title, the Texas Longhorns threw a scare into the Arkansas camp by breaking the Porkers winning streak of 32 consecutive games. In the first game, Arkansas, with their team working in its usual machine-like precision, swept aside the Longhorns 48-32. On the second evening a fighting close-guarding Texas aggregation stopped the champions 36-25 for the only defeat of the season.

Although the Razorbacks won both games by big scores, 51-18 and 44-13, Rice Institute furnished the most lively conference games seen on the home court this season.

To wind up the season, Coach Schmidt and his six-footers cinched the fourth consecutive conference title by twice defeating the Texas A. and M. Cadets, 49-23 and 38-29. By their close guarding and accurate long shots the Texas lads bewildered the lanky pupils of Schmidt for the first quarter of the first encounter. Pickren who has been on the side line most of the year was rushed to the rescue. He added 10 points to the scoring column and enough new life to the team to put them in the lead for the rest of the game. Lambert scored 11 points from guard position to gain recognition as the best scoring guard in the loop. The Texas quintet came back the second evening determined to keep the bunting out of the Ozarks. Close guarding which was concentrated on the Razorback aces, Schoonover and Pickell, held Arkansas to a 38-29 score, but the gonfalon will fly from the flagpole of Schmidt's Barn for at least one more season.

THERE will be no more Schmidt machines on the Arkansas maple floor, at least not under the Cardinal and White. The loss of Schmidty will be keenly felt by the locals of next year. In addition to Schmidt the graduation route takes Pickell and Lambert, two of the all-conference cogs who have been doubly important in Arkansas' basket ball success, also, A. Hale, Eidson and Rains. Despite these losses, the new basket ball coach will find prospects for another winning team next season.

Wear Schoonover, a unanimous choice for a forward position on the all-conference team for two seasons, and runner-up for scoring honors this season, will lead the 1930 aggregation. Jim Pickren, another scoring forward, will return as sub-captain. Holt will ably take care of the center position, and three veteran guards will be available, in Oliver, Creighton, and Prewitt. H. Hale, Hurd and Burns will also be in running for places on the varsity.

Coach Farris' Freshman aggregation will send up some likely candidates for the coming campaign. The green-capped squad engaged in numerous games with high school and junior college quintets as well as daily practice skirmishes with the varsity.

Frosh numerals were awarded to the following: Earl Darr, Glen Innis, Joe Wepfer, Roy Keeling, Charlie Trapp, Joe Chambers, Dean Good, Billie Askew, Clark Buell, Brooks Lewis, and Paul Adams.

With a complete varsity quintet back on the court, aided by the graduates of a husky freshman crew in a place where two basket ball players seem to grow where one is lost, the prospects are not at all dark for the conference prize in the indoor sport to remain outside of the range of the Texans.

THOMSEN, Coach.

For several years it has been the desire of the athletic department to make track the major sport of the spring season. Thomsen, a former Nebraska sprint star, produced a winning squad in 1928 and looked for a better season this year. However, the tricks of fate called several of the best men from the team, so that the results have been only mediocre. But, the love and admiration on the part of track followers for the efforts of Coach Thomsen has not faltered.

AT THE close of the 1928 season, hopes for the best Arkansas track team of all time ran high. Meets were scheduled for this year with some of the best squads in this section, including the strong Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg, Oklahoma A. and M., and Missouri State Teachers of Springfield.

Before the opening of the season, Gresham, Arkansas' greatest middle-distance runner, left school. Tilmon, holder of the University record in both hurdle events and last season's conference winner, and Crabaugh and Pickell, holders of the javelin and shot-put records, were also forced out at the eve of the opening of the season.

A five-man team was entered in the Dallas relays as the season curtain raiser. All the entries turned in good performances but found the competition a bit too strong to bring home the pelts of enemy contenders.

The first dual meet was with the College of the Ozarks. The Razorback thinclads turned back Rice and Company with the low end of a 77-53 count. On the following Saturday, the Kansas State Teachers presented the best balanced track aggregation ever seen on the local field and trimmed the Porkers, 92-39. Hendrix refused to meet the Razorbacks as per schedule on the next week, so the Arkansas team acted as assistants in running off the annual invitation high school meet. Oklahoma A. and M. offered the next opposition. They were more of the Razorback caliber, yet managed to get the top end of a 82-49 score.

As the book goes to press two more engagements remain on the Arkansas menu, Springfield, Missouri, Teachers and the Conference Meet.

The selection of letters will not be made until after these two encounters.

BILL MCLEOD, Dashes

Arkansas entered a five-man team in the relays at Dallas as a reward for the boys who had withstood the spring snows long enough to be in physical condition. Athletes from all parts of the United States took part in the contests. Several stars of national and Olympic fame were at the meet, including Paavo Nurmi, the pride of Finland, and holder of numerous world records.

By placing in only three events, Southwestern conference track teams offered little opposition to the nationally-known stars at the relays.

The biggest feature of the meet was the bettering of the world's record in the 100-yard dash by Bracey of Rice Institute. Bracey's time will probably stand at 9.5 seconds, a new world's record.

Although Arkansas' five-man team did not place in anything, they all gave a good account of themselves. Milan Creighton, sophomore star, bettered the University of Arkansas and Southwestern Conference record in the discus, when he hurled the platter 138 feet and 10 inches. George Streepey and Jack Dale, both vaulted over twelve feet in the meet. Crabaugh hurled the javelin 190 feet, but got his balk lines mixed up and lost about ten feet on the official score. His mark would have established a new conference record had it been allowed.

Practically every school in the Southwest, Big Six, Missouri Valley and Big Ten Conferences competed in the meet.

Several world's records, conference records, and Olympic marks were bettered to complete one of the best engagements of track and field contests ever held in the Southwest.

By winning from the College of the Ozarks Mountaineers by a score of 77 to 53, the Arkansas squad took the first home meet of the season. The Razorbacks took nine firsts, eight seconds, and eight thirds to the six firsts, six seconds and four thirds of the Mountaineers.

Rice, the outstanding star of the Ozarks squad, took individual scoring honors for the afternoon, being first in the javelin, broad jump, and 100-yard dash, and second in the shot-put for a total of 18 points. McKennon was second for the Mountaineers, with 11 points.

Rice ran McLeod, the Razorback speed artist, into the ground on the 100-yard dash, to win by inches. The sophomore star, however, came back in the 220 with the winning time of 22.5 seconds. Eidson, Frierson, and Adams found the going easy in all of the distance runs, Adams taking firsts in both the long races. Lambert defeated McKennon in both hurdles, while Creighton came out winner in the shot and discus. The greatest strength of the Mountaineers lay in the field events; however, the teams divided the first places in the group. Streepey and Dale were in fine form and gave the fans an exhibition in deciding who should claim the victory of the day; Streepey cleared the highest bar at 12 feet, six inches.

Lambert took two firsts, one second and one third for 14 points and led the Razorbacks in scoring. Creighton and Adams tied for second high scoring honors with ten points each.

Walter Dixon, Arkansas hurdle star, took first in both hurdle events and second place in the high jump, in the dual meet with the Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg on the Arkansas oval, April 13, furnishing the only bright spot in the Arkansas squad's defeat at the hands of the Gorillas. Dixon made 13 points to lead the field in individual scoring. The final score was Kansas 92, Arkansas 39.

Kansas presented one of the best balanced teams ever seen on the local oval and showed the way to the Arkansas thin-clads in nearly every event. The same Kansas team this year defeated some of the best college teams in the United States at the Southern Methodist and Illinois relay carnivals. Several Kansas titleholders were on the Gorilla squad.

The Razorbacks went into the meet with four old men on the bench. Lambert, who had been high-point man in the previous meet, was held out of service because of leg injuries.

Ratzliff, Gorilla distance man, furnished the thrill of the meet when he finished second in the two-mile race after losing a shoe on the seventh lap.

The mile relay bettered the University record by three seconds. This record has stood since the days of such stars as Bagby, Berry, Rainwater, and Futrall, yet it looked simple to these Gorilla stars who have turned in some of the fastest time recorded in the National relay carnivals this season. The shot-put results were a mere two and one-half feet better than Tom Pickell's all-time University record.

Two University of Arkansas records were shattered when the Oklahoma Aggies took firsts in ten events to win from the Razorbacks, 82 to 49, on April 27.

Herman Bagby's record of 22.3 seconds for the 220-yard dash, made on a curved track, was bettered by Cobb of the Oklahomans, who raced down the straight-away with a record time of 21.5 seconds. Best of Oklahoma cleared the low hurdles in 23.9 to better Tilmon's record of 24.6 in the event. Best was high-point man of the meet, with $11\frac{1}{4}$ points, with firsts in the two hurdle events and as a member of the winning relay team. Miller and Creighton were tied for Arkansas scoring honors, with eight points each. Creighton took first in the discus and second in the shot, and Miller took first in the javelin and second in the high jump.

McLeod, the sophomore speed artist, showed the best form of the season when he was clocked in the 100-yard dash in the fast time of 10.1 seconds. Adams staged a thrilling finish to take first in the two-mile event after running behind most of the distance. Streepey and Dale again entertained with their skyward pole vaulting, ending after clearing the bar at 12 feet and 6 inches for first and second places.

Faulkner, an Arkansas lad, was the fastest miler ever seen on the local track. Although his time in this race was a shade slower than Gresham's record, he slowed down on the finish because of his big lead. He holds the Missouri Valley record in the mile and half-mile events for the Oklahomans.

MISSOURI TEACHERS

The day Arkansas met the Missouri Teachers at Springfield on May 4 was a cold one for track. However, fighting for everything they had, the team carried off an 80-51 victory. Notable winners for Arkansas included Creighton, shot-put, 40 feet 1 inch; Streepey, pole-vault, 11 feet 8½ inches; Dixon, high hurdles; Eidson, 440-yard dash; Creighton, discus; McRae and Lambert, high jump; Miller, javelin; Miller, broad jump; Lambert, 220 low hurdles. Arkansas won the 1-mile relay with a team composed of Eidson, Bain, Davis and Treece.

PROSPECTUS

Interest in track is being fostered by regular tryouts for Sigma Delta Psi, an athletic fraternity, based upon proficiency in track and field events. Track men will continue working for these events from the close of the track season until the close of school, which will enable the coaches to better build up the second-string men and the freshmen for next season.

Several veterans will be lost through the route of graduation this year. However, a considerable group of old men will return, together with a fair crop of frosh tracksters who give promise of future record breakers.

McLeod, Davis, Bain, Munn, McDow, and P. Cooper are able to care for the sprints during the next season. Adams, Jackson, Wright, Walker, W. Cooper, and Funk will be available for the longer runs. Dale and Creighton, the sophomore stars, have more time to serve in the pole vault and field events, and they will receive help from such frosh stars as Kyle, Hicks and Redman.

In addition to furnishing daily competition for the varsity runners, the frosh team engaged in one dual meet with Ozark Wesleyan.

RESUME OF THE SEASON

Baseball was reinstated on trial at the University of Arkansas for this year, after it had been dropped as a major sport by the Athletic Council of 1928.

The Razorbacks, being anxious to make a good showing in the sport for the safety of the game as a future college sport, came through with one of the best teams developed at the University in recent years.

The squad of 1929 was built around the masterful pitching of Oliver and Brewer. Few college teams are fortunate enough to have such curve artists. Oliver has faster company awaiting him if he desires to follow the national pastime after leaving school. Blackburn, Trimble, and Milburn are the class of the outfield, while Williams, Fondren, Crawford, Schoonover, and Thompson do most of the capering around the inner garden. Just what status baseball will have after this season's experiment remains to be seen. If the sport is continued, prospects are bright for next season, with all this year's regulars returning except three—Williams, Fondren and Thompson.

Jack Murphy of Junction City was manager this year of intra-mural athletics. Kappa Sigma came out ahead in football and Sigma Phi Epsilon in basketball.

Kenneth Schoephoester of Cotton Plant was captain of the tennis team.

Coach Farris trained the frosh football squad.

For the first time Arkansas awarded Cross-Country letters. They went to five distance trackers.

THE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION was organized in 1923 for the purpose of developing a high physical efficiency among the women students of the University of Arkansas. It works to encourage an interest in gymnastic, hygienic and athletic activities and to encourage the young women to take proper exercise which is so beneficial to health.

Tournaments of the various sports offered by the department of physical education are sponsored each year in which many of the students take parts. These tournaments are of interest to the entire student body and trophies are offered for the winning teams. Membership into the club is gained by acquiring a certain number of points given for participation in each sport.

The W. A. A. affiliated itself with the Conference of American College Women, July 10, 1924; it is also connected with the National Athletic Federation, having connected itself with that body in the fall of 1927.

The W. A. A. also sponsors better fellowship among the women of the institution standing strictly for clean athletics and helps to bring about in an athletic way a more friendly spirit among the young women of the University.

MILITARY

This is an age of aviation—and we are living in the clouds. Looking down from behind the whirling propellers 50 years from now, the flyer will spy the R. O. T. C. cadet boys drilling on a special parade ground. In the color guard below, by the side of the national standard, will float the flag of the State of Arkansas—and also of a Greater University.

LIKE other land-grant institutions receiving aid from the Federal government, the University offers courses in Military Science and Tactics, compulsory for all able-bodied students for the first two years. Basic instruction in various phases of military work is given by the staff of officers assigned to the University on detached duty.

The advanced course, taken during the last two years, is optional with the student, the total number being limited. The cadet serves in the ranks in the basic course, as a second lieutenant while a junior, and as a cadet first lieutenant up to colonel, according to rank, while a senior.

The unit is made up of approximately 500 cadets and cadet officers, and is organized as a regiment of two battalions. Weekly parades and other formations are held, in addition to one hour a week of class-room work. Federal inspection each spring has always showed that the University R. O. T. C. ranks well in comparison with the others of this Corps Area.

Major E. G. Beuret is P. M. S. & T., in charge of the department, now serving his fourth year as a member of the department faculty. Major A. L. Hamblen came to the University last fall from Fort Benning, Georgia. Captain Guy M. Kinman helps with the football teams in addition to his military duties. Lieutenant Lane is coaching the rifle team for the fourth time, which means that it looks bad for the team next year. Sergeant Jack Greathouse and Sergeant Sidney Guard, retired, are the other two members of the staff.

The Cadet Colonel

GEORGE STREEPEY

FOUR years of work—three to get it and one to keep it—that's the story of the honor of being Cadet Colonel. And Colonel George W. Streepey seems to think that it is worth it, judging from various statements this year. His duties are to command the R. O. T. C. regiment on all occasions, receive the parades, escort the Honorary Colonel on all formal occasions, lead the Grand March at the Military ball with her, and in general, to look after the Unit under the supervision of the P. M. S. & T. Colonel Streepey, in addition, has for the first time been accorded the double honor of Colonel and Captain of Scabbard and Blade.

Nina Streepey was voted the honor unanimously (we won't say why) this year, and proceeded to perform the duties of the office with all military bearing and dignity. She not only presided over the military ball and led the grand march with the Cadet Colonel, but she also presented the cadet commissions and reserve commissions to the officers of the corps, with the help of President Futrall and other dignitaries.

Company "A"

WHEN Captain Eldridge of "A" Company was promoted to the rank of Cadet Major the job then fell to Jack Murphy.

Leading the battalion in most of the parades, Company "A" has done a good piece of work and generally set a good example for the remainder of the companies to follow. Jack was our pitcher in the one or two baseball games at camp, as well as being one of our entries in the golf tournament. He also made good scores on the pistol and rifle ranges, turning in one of the best camp records of the seniors who attended the six-weeks camp at Fort Leavenworth last summer.

CAPTAIN KILLEBREW of "B" Company distinguished himself upon the field of battle last summer, being the hero of the capture of Mooring Mast Hill on numerous occasions, as well as earning the title of champion "griper" of Fort Leavenworth. His "gripping" tactics continued at the University throughout the year, a fact which was recognized by the Press Club at their annual gridiron banquet when he was presented with a trophy in token of his campus championship.

But regardless of all that, "Killy" is one of the best-liked men on the drill field, especially by the men of his "outfit," and always expresses his gripes for the amusement of all.

But in spite of that, he has managed to put his company through the paces to the extent of having a good-looking outfit, capable of giving some one a run for their money when it comes to the presentation of the cup to the best-drilled company. "Pux" was one of the outstanding golfers of the Arkansas contingent at Leavenworth last summer, and still boasts of the compliments which General King paid him on one occasion at least. And his Hudson roadster made many trips into Kansas City for the week-end.

"Mickey" covered himself with glory at summer camp by winning one of the two medals collected by the Arkansas fellows—leaving a couple of Ouachita runners wondering if there had been a race. "Mickey" also decided that his knowledge of military needed brushing up to the extent of staying at C. M. T. C., or was it that? Anyway he went to Prescott before he came back for camp.

ANOTHER national guardsman is Buel T. Rose, Captain of Company "E," although he belongs to Battery "E," a machine-gun company of Coast Artillery. Buel made the statement after camp was over that he had never seen a place where a fellow could have as big a time for so long and know so little about it afterwards as at Fort Leavenworth, and can we doubt him? Who would dispute him that has ever been there? At any rate, it did not interfere with his making a good camp record, and turning out a well-drilled company for the competition in the local R. O. T. C. unit this spring.

Company "F"

THE big gun in the Engineering College—that's what the members of Company "F" have to say for their Captain. And he is just about that, if you analyze the situation thoroughly. But somehow that doesn't keep him from running affairs in his outfit in a military fashion, and making them toe the mark when it comes to drilling. Bob Bowman was the brilliant outfielder and manager of the Razorback ball club at camp—the club that made such a remarkable showing against the champions of Fort Leavenworth. And that is only a little bit of the many things that he has done to bring distinction to himself and to Company "F."

JIM BOSWELL gets a lot of his military from Battery "A," of the National Guard. Where he gets the rest we don't know, but the fact remains that he has it, and that he is one of the best senior officers on the field. Company "G" is fortunate in having a captain of his experience, and it should be quite an asset in their favor at the annual competitive drill. Jim was another of the golfing demons at camp, going to the semi-finals only to be eliminated by the man who eventually won the camp championship. The R. O. T. C. Rifle Team

WITH the Hearst trophy won for two straight years, the University Rifle team had a job on its hands at the beginning of the present season. For permanent possession, it has to be won three consecutive years. Thus, with three members of last year's team gone, Coach Lane had quite a task in finding some one to fill their places and produce a winner again.

But this was done, and the new team put out a score even better than the one that won last year; consequently, we are very hopeful of becoming the owner of the trophy, as well as another regional shield, and the national five-man team championship that goes with it.

Rifle work is a sport that very few of the students are acquainted with—in fact, many do not even know that we have a rifle team. And quite a few of the others do not realize what a great amount of time and effort are spent by the coach and men in developing teams which have been nationally victorious for the past three years. For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the matches, a short resume will be given.

The firing is done with a .22 calibre rifle on the gallery range in the basement of the Commerce building. The targets are made with a bull's-eye 15/100 of an inch in diameter, just about the size of the hole made by a .22 bullet. Four positions are used—prone, sitting, kneeling, and standing. All firing is done here, under the supervision of the coach and two witnesses, and the targets are sent to headquarters to be checked and scored. Thus, it is evident that only by hours of constant practice can a man become accurate enough to take his place on the University Rifle team.

Vernon Tuller has been one of the mainstays of the team for three years, and is eligible for one more year of competition. Gayle Jackson is now serving his second year on the Hearst team, and will be greatly missed next year. First-year men are George Streepey, cadet-colonel; B. F. Uhl, who also has another year, and Tom Hicks, a freshman, who deserves a world of credit for making such a team. High scores for the Arkansas team were turned in by Uhl and Jackson, both of whom dropped only two points out of a possible 200, making a score of 198 each.

University R. O. T. C. and Concert Band

F. J. FOUTZ
Director

F. J. FOUTZ Director
JOHN E. STAIR Student Director

UNDER the leadership of F. J. Foutz, the Band has come to the front as a University organization. The Band has furnished an indispensable part of the big athletic events at the University. Parades have helped to add spirit and zest to the football games, even on foreign gridirons. One of the biggest "drives" of the year is that which sends the Band to Shreveport to play before the Louisiana state fair people at the Arkansas-L. S. U. football game. The impetus given by the band, together with an age-long rivalry between Arkansas and L. S. U., makes the game at Shreveport annually the most interesting to radio fans of Fayetteville.

A regular part of the Band year is spent in the preparation and playing of several concerts and an ever-increasing selection of radio numbers. There are also many calls for the Band during the year for such events as the opening of the civic auditorium at Eureka Springs, Agri parade, Fort Smith events, and often occasions at Tulsa, Oklahoma.

This year the Band attained a long-sought-for goal—new uniforms—and they make a flashy appearance in their colored outfits on the athletic field and in concert.

For the first time since the organization of the R. O. T. C. and Concert Band, it has attempted and succeeded in forming letters. On two occasions they formed, with the help of the Rootin' Rubes, Girls' Drum Corps, and Arkansas Boosters' Club, the letters: U. of A. This formation, mixed with march music, was a feature of the annual homecoming football game between halves. Also for the first time the Band has tried trick and fancy formations and succeeded.

Unique among student-directors of bands is John E. Stair. His instrument is the bass drum. This year all the pep meetings have centered about the big bass drum.

Engineers have outgrown their quarters and entered the second completed unit of the big building program for a Greater University of Arkansas. In the vacated structure a new college is engineering itself to success—the School of Business Administration.

FRATERNITIES

Interfraternity Council

KENT KERBY, Lambda Chi Alpha
President

ARTICLE I—Name

The name of this organization shall be "The Inter-Fraternity Council of the University of Arkansas."

ARTICLE II—Purpose

The Interfraternity Council of the University of Arkansas is the supervisory and governing body of all social fraternities at the University; its purpose is to provide for the general welfare, social, and scholastic activities of the members of the fraternities within the Council; and to instill in them the highest regard for Arkansas traditions and institutions.

ARTICLE III—Membership

Section 1—Membership in the organization shall include all local chapters of national social fraternities.

Section 2—Social local fraternities may send representatives to this Council, but such representatives shall not have power to vote in any matters concerning the Interfraternity Council.

Section 3—Social fraternities which have been established on the campus and which have the required qualifications will automatically become members of this Council.

ARTICLE IV—Representation

Representation of members in regular meetings shall be by two men from each fraternity represented in the Council, except that substitutions may be made as hereinafter provided in the by-laws.

ARTICLE V—Meetings

Section 1—Regular meetings shall be held on the first Sunday afternoon of each month of the college year.

Section 2—Special meetings may be called by a majority vote of the Executive committee.

Section 3—Three-fourths of the membership shall constitute a quorum for the meetings.

107 Active Chapters

KAPPA SIGMA was founded at the University of Virginia, December 10, 1869, by William Grigsby McCormick, George Miles Arnold, Edmund Law Rogers, Jr., Frank Courtney Nicodemus and John Covert Boyd.

From its inception it was intended that Kappa Sigma should expand into other institutions and become a widespread organization, but it was not till 1873 that the founders saw their plans take definite shape, although a chapter had been established at the University of Alabama shortly after the parent chapter was organized.

Arkansas Xi chapter was established in 1890. The chapter existed as the Richardson club, named from Dr. Charles Richardson of Fayetteville, during the time that fraternities were barred from the Arkansas campus between the years 1901 and 1903.

The regular conventions, called grand conclaves, are held every two years—since 1915 in the odd-numbered year—usually in mid-summer.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Founded at the University of Alabama, 1856

Colors—Purple and Gold.

Flower—Violet

103 Active Chapters

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON fraternity was founded in 1856 by eight students of the University of Alabama. In its early years it remained in the South, the first chapter north of the Mason and Dixon line being established just before the Civil War. At present the order numbers 103 active chapters with an initiated membership of over 35,000. Periodicals are the Record, fraternity histories, directories, and secret publications. Working in collaboration with the active chapters are almost a hundred alumni associations. Of these, there are three in this state. Included among the present projects of the fraternity is the Levere Memorial, a building which will house the fraternity library, museum, and the national headquarters, dedicated to the memory of William C. Levere, who for 25 years was the fraternity's greatest worker. The local chapter, Arkansas Alpha-Epsilon, was installed on the University campus in 1894 with a charter enrollment of 17.

Kappa Alpha

Founded at Washington and Lee University, 1865

Colors—Crimson and Gold

Flowers—Red Rose and Magnolia

65 Active Chapters

KAPPA ALPHA (southern) was founded December 21, 1865, at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Founders: James W. Wood, Rev. William Nelson Scott, Stanhope M. Scott and William A. Walsh.

The first name was Phi Kappa Chi but was changed to Kappa Alpha due to the similarity to Phi Kappa Psi.

Ideas for establishment: to foster and maintain the manners, customs, and ideals of the southern people. Robert E. Lee was spiritual founder. Kappa Alpha has confined itself to the south.

Kappa Alpha now has 65 chapters and is located in the principal universities and colleges of the south.

Official publications of the order are: Kappa Alpha Journal, Special Messenger, Directory, and Kappa Alpha Song Book.

The Fraternity is organized in seven provinces and these are officered by Province Commanders, Secretaries, and Alumni Historians.

Colors: Crimson and Old Gold.

Flowers: Magnolia and Red Rose.

The flag consists of three broad bars: crimson, white, and gold, of equal width, placed parallel with the staff. In the center of the white bar is a crimson cross.

Sigma Nu

Founded at Virginia Military Institute, 1869

Colors—Black and Gold

Flower—White Rose

91 Active Chapters

SIGMA NU fraternity had its origin in the Legion of Honor, a secret society organized in 1868 at Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Virginia. This secret society was drawn together and led by James F. Hopkins of Arkansas. The other founders of the fraternity were Greenfield, Quarles and James M. Riley, who, like Hopkins, were also men from states that were considered western at the time. During the first year of Sigma Nu history there were members from seven states represented. The early activities in extension of Sigma Nu were due to this widespread representation.

At first the chapters were not given Greek-letter names, but were designated by Roman numerals in the order of their establishment.

The badge of Sigma Nu is from a design made by James F. Hopkins, the founder. It is of gold, with five white arms meeting in a center of black enamel, on which is coiled a golden serpent.

Founded at the University of Virginia, 1868

Colors—Garnet and Gold

Flower—Lily of the Valley

74 Active Chapters

PI KAPPA ALPHA was founded at the University of Virginia, March 1st, 1868, as a sectional fraternity, being an organization of the South.

Alpha Zeta chapter at the University of Arkansas was established in 1905 and was the first chapter installed west of the Mississippi river. Conservative expansion has brought the national roster to include seventy-four chapters located in the larger institutions of the country, and an active alumni organization covers the entire continent.

The colors of the fraternity are garnet and gold. The flower is the lily of the valley. The official publication is the Shield and Diamond, published five times a year dealing with timely fraternity topics and chapter news.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Founded at the University of Richmond, Virginia, 1901

Colors—Purple and Red

Flowers—Violet and American Beauty Rose

60 Active Chapters

SIGMA PHI EPSILON was founded at Richmond College (now the University of Richmond), Richmond, Virginia, in November, 1901. The basis of the organization was a society called the Saturday Night Club. There are 60 active chapters and 22 chartered alumni chapters.

One of the features of the fraternity is the financial plan. Concerning this, Baird's Manual says the following:

"In 1916 the Purdue chapter surrendered all its property to the alumni who devised a plan of operation, since copyrighted by the fraternity as the 'Purdue Plan,' and now known as the 'Sigma Phi Epsilon Plan of Finance.' Under this plan financial affairs of chapters are entirely in the hands of alumni, the inexperienced undergraduate being relieved of this burden and so left free to devote all his time to fraternal matters. The plan which worked so successfully at Purdue has been installed in all the chapters."

During the first two years of its existence the parent chapter met with much opposition, even to attacks on its meeting rooms. At the time of its inception few, if any, ministerial students were made fraternity men at Richmond. S. P. E. admitted several to membership. This departure, coupled with the fact that the badge was heart-shaped, caused them to be called the "Sacred Hearts."

Lambda Chi Alpha

Founded at Boston University, 1909

Colors—Purple, Green and Gold

Flower—Violet

77 Active Chapters

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA was founded at Boston University, growing out of the Cosmopolitan Law Club, which had been organized in 1905. This club was the parent of the first Zeta of the fraternity, Alpha, which was naturally at Boston.

The fraternity now has a total of seventy-seven chapters, all of which are active.

The headquarters of Lambda Chi Alpha are at Indianapolis, Indiana, under the management of Bruce H. McIntosh, administrative secretary. It has two full-time salaried secretaries who make chapter visitations twice a year.

The two major ideals of the fraternity are "Service" and "Fraternalism."

Theta Phi Delta was founded at the University of Arkansas, November 1, 1923, by Garland Stubblefield and Phil Deal. It was chartered as a Zeta in the national fraternity May 24, 1925.

Theta Kappa Nu

Founded by Interfraternity Amalgamation, 1924

Colors—Argent, Sable and Crimson

Flower—White Rose

46 Active Chapters

THETA KAPPA NU was founded June 9, 1924, by the amalgamation of eleven old established locals at a meeting held in Springfield, Missouri. These eleven founding chapters were: Phi Kappa Nu, Howard College (Birmingham), Tau Lambda with chapters at Rollins, University of Florida, and North Carolina State College; Tri Kappa, Hanover College; Kappa Delta Psi, Iowa Wesleyan College; Sigma Delta Chi, Simpson College; Phi Beta Omega, Baker University; Phi Alpha Sigma, Drury College; Kappa Phi, Oklahoma City University; and Phi Sigma, Gettysburg College.

The national organization is young, however it is composed of local chapters, most of which are very old. Quoting Baird's Manual, we find: Sigma Phi (founded 1868), of Baldwin-Wallace College, and Alpha Delta Theta (1867), of Culver-Stockton College, as the Ohio Beta and Missouri Gamma Chapters, both having been in existence over half a century when the national with which they were later to be affiliated, was founded.

Alpha Lambda Tau

Founded at Oglethorpe University, 1916

Colors—Gold and Black

Flower—American Beauty Rose

13 Active Chapters

ALPHA LAMBDA TAU was founded at Oglethorpe University, October 8, 1916, as the first fraternal organization on the campus and the first freshman who registered in the "new" University as a charter member. The prime motive of the founders was the desire to have a new fraternity grow with a new University. For ten years there was an unconfirmed opinion among the members that the fraternity was to be forever confined to the Southern States. However, several years ago that was discussed at length in Convention and the theory exploded at that time. Since then the lone Northern chapter has been placed at the University of Illinois. The fraternity was founded to be a National organization, and, although expansion has been extremely slow, a national survey has been carried out through the Central Office during the past three years.

The government of the organization is centralized through a Central Office located in Atlanta, Georgia, and a yearly Convention in which all chapters participate legislates on important changes and measures affecting the organization.

The fraternity issues a quarterly known as the Rose Leaf and a monthly esoteric publication known as the ALT. The first named, during the early years of the fraternity, was very irregular, but in recent years has been put on a strict and regular basis, appearing in the months of January, March, May, October.

Delta Tau Sigma

Local Chapter founded at the University of Arkansas, 1929

Colors—Blue and White

Flower—Laurel

DELTA TAU SIGMA was established at the University of Arkansas in the spring of 1929. There were nine charter members who had, for a considerable time, been thinking of the establishment of a new fraternity on the campus. These nine young men were invited by Mr. Moses Baum to meet with him in his home for the discussion of a new society. The object of the group was to form an association of members bound together by a common desire to create ties of friendship which would endure through life. A further purpose was for the some-time affiliation with a strong national organization which stands for the maintenance of the highest standards of Jewish ideals.

Since the first official meeting was held in the home of Mr. Baum and because he has thrown his home open for any meetings or other functions of the organization, the fraternity considers his house, pictured below, as the official abode of the fraternity.

Chi Omega

Founded at the University of Arkansas, 1895

Colors—Cardinal and Straw

Flower—White Carnation

76 Active Chapters

THE CHI OMEGA fraternity was founded at the University of Arkansas, April 5, 1895, by Ina Mae Boles, Jobelle Holcombe, Alice Carey Simonds, and Jeanne Marie Vincenheller. They were assisted in planning their organization by Dr. Charles Richardson, Kappa Sigma, who in consideration of this service was made sole honorary member.

There are at present 76 active chapters, four inactive. The total membership is now 11,015.

The open declaration of Chi Omega is "Hellenic Culture and Christian Ideals." Its program includes a service fund, the income of which is used to publish special research studies in educational, social, scientific or civic lines.

There are 36 alumnae chapters, each helping in social and civic work.

Conventions are held biennially. Fixed features are round-table discussion and a Greek play, "The Early Mother," especially written for Chi Omega.

The journal, "The Eleusis," is issued quarterly. Publication began at Fayetteville, Arkansas, in 1899.

ZETA TAU ALPHA, founded in 1898 at the Virginia State Normal School at Farmville Virginia, was chartered as a legal corporation by the legislature of Virginia, March 18, 1902.

Government of the sorority is vested in a grand chapter consisting of five officers. The legislative government is vested in a convention. The central office of the sorority is located at Beaumont, Texas. Chapters of Zeta Tau Alpha are grouped in twelve provinces, each under a province president. There is a scholarship loan fund, not necessarily limited to members.

Epsilon chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha at the University of Arkansas is among the first four established chapters of the sorority. Established at the University in 1903, it is now the second oldest active chapter of the sorority. The local which petitioned Zeta Tau Alpha was known as Delta Phi.

Pi Beta Phi

Founded at Monmouth College, 1867

Colors—Wine and Silver Blue

Flower—Red Carnation

76 Active Chapters

IT WAS first called the I. C. Sorosis, but about 1883 the Greek letters Pi Beta Phi were added and the original name was eventually dropped. It was incorporated under the laws of Illinois in 1889.

The fraternity, by voluntary contributions of members and alumnae maintains a settlement school at Gatlinburg, Tennessee, established in 1912 as a memorial to the twelve founders of Pi Beta Phi. Situated on over a hundred acres of its own land in eight well-equipped buildings, the school offers work covering eleven grades. It has an enrollment of nearly 150 and a teaching staff of nine members. In 1924 it assumed supervision over the district school at Sugarlands, a community about six miles from Gatlinburg. Other interests of the fraternity are the undergraduate loan fund, the annual graduate fellowship, and the Pi Beta Phi endowment fund. The quarterly journal, The Arrow, has an endowment fund of $112,000 and a circulation of 15,000 copies.

The total active membership of the fraternity is approximately 16,000. There are seventy-six chapters, grouped geographically into ten provinces, and 116 alumnae clubs. Arkansas Alpha chapter was established at Arkansas in 1909.

73 Active Chapters

DELTA DELTA DELTA was founded at Boston University on Thanksgiving Eve, 1888, by four members of the Class of '89.

They associated with them seventeen members of the lower classes.

Total membership of the sorority is approximately 15,000. There are alumni chapters located in all of the large cities.

"The Trident," a quarterly journal whose first issue appeared in 1891 on the third anniversary of Delta Delta Delta, has been published continuously since. Other publications include "The Triton," a private quarterly bulletin, and "The Trireme," a triennial private bulletin published first in 1908.

Three songbooks have been issued by the sorority, in 1905, 1912 and 1925. However, several other accepted sorority songs have been composed and issued in sheet music. The local chapter of Delta Delta Delta has contributed to the latter with a song issued last year.

54 Active Chapters

PHI MU was an outgrowth of a local society called the Philomathean which was organized at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., March 4, 1852. On June 24, 1904, the name was changed to Phi Mu and a policy of expansion adopted.

The national council, composed of eight members, manages the affairs of the sorority in the interim between conventions, which are held biennially. They are assisted by a general council, composed of the presidents of the seven provinces into which the chapters are divided, a national Panhellenic congress delegate and a scholarship director. The executive office is in Chicago.

A loving cup is awarded annually to the chapter standing highest in grades. Phi Mu appropriates one thousand dollars a year for a graduate fellowship administered by the fellowship committee of the American Association of University Women to be open to graduate women in any institution where Phi Mu has a chapter.

The philanthropy of Phi Mu is the healthmobile, a child-hygiene truck operating in the State of Georgia.

58 Active Chapters

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA was founded at Monmouth College, Illinois, October 13, 1870. At the present time there are 58 active chapters with a total membership of 16,000.

Kappa Kappa Gamma called the first national panhellenic convention, representatives of seven women's organizations meeting in Boston, April, 1891.

Since 1902 alumnae interest has centered in the Students' Aid Fund, a memorial to the founders of Kappa Kappa Gamma, now amounting to $50,000. From it loans are made without interest.

The central office is located at Columbus, Ohio. A magazine, "The Key," is published quarterly. National conventions are held biennially.

Women's Panhellenic

THE Women's Panhellenic represents a get-together council for the different sororities of the campus. Every other Wednesday afternoon they meet in the office of the Dean of Women, Miss Martha Reid, and discuss matters of interest to the sororities. Dean Reid has been the faculty advisor for the Panhellenic and a sponsor of proceedings.

Every year the Panhellenic has a banquet, at which affair each sorority contributes to the program.

Every sorority on the campus is a member of the council and allowed two members with as many votes. However, the position of officers is limited to members of national sororities.

SKULL AND TORCH grew out of two honor societies, "The Skull" and "The Torch," which united February 5, 1915, and formed the society now bearing the name. The purpose of this organization is to develop a higher efficiency in scholarship and a more wholesome moral sentiment through fraternal relationship.

Membership in Skull and Torch is the highest honor conferred upon students in the College of Arts and Sciences. A grade point of 4.25 for four years is a prerequisite for membership.

BLUE KEY, honor fraternity, was founded at the University of Florida in October, 1924, by Major Bert C. Riley. A national organization was established in February, 1925. Blue Key recognizes outstanding qualities in character, scholarship, student activities, leadership and service. Membership is composed of graduate and undergraduate students of all departments of American colleges and universities. Honorary membership is extended to a limited number of faculty members and alumni. The fraternity is committed to co-operate with the faculty; to study student problems; stimulate progress and promote the interests of the institutions where it has chapters.

The badge is an oblong key of gold on the surface of which appears a gold oval with a raised border. Within the oval in gold relief appears a cross; on the surface of the cross appears a spread-eagle; in the mouth of the eagle is a wreath of laurel; at the feet, on the lower point of the cross is a star. Outside of the oval in which these symbols appear, the corners of the key are brilliant azure blue.

KAPPA DELTA PI grew out of a local society, the Illinois Education Club, founded at the University of Illinois in 1909; and later, June 8, 1911, it was incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois as the honorary educational fraternity, Kappa Delta Pi. Membership consists of juniors and seniors, both men and women, with a general scholarship of a grade above the average and the completion of work in education to the extent of at least six semester hours. It is both a graduate and under-graduate fraternity, and has the unique distinction of a laureate chapter composed of outstanding educators throughout the world, the intention being to make this in essence an academy of educators similar to the academy of science or academy of fine letters. There are fifteen of these laureates.

The Alpha Beta Chapter was founded in the University of Arkansas in 1924.

A biennial convocation is held and a quarterly review, "The Kadelphian" is published at Menasha, Wisconsin.

TAU BETA PI is an honorary society founded at Lehigh University in June, 1885, under the leadership of Prof. E. H. Williams, Jr. Its purpose is to confer distinction upon those students who have maintained a high grade of scholarship and to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering students in the institutions in which its chapters are located. When a chapter is established it may confer its key upon its alumni and students of earlier years in analogy to a similar custom in Phi Beta Kappa.

Membership may be offered to graduates of engineering colleges where there is no chapter, provided the recipient fulfilled the regular eligibility requirements as a student. Membership of distinction may be conferred upon prominent engineers, who may or may not already be members of the society. Alpha Chapter was founded in the University of Arkansas in 1914.

TAU KAPPA ALPHA was organized May 13, 1908, at Indianapolis, Indiana, primarily through the efforts of students of Butler, Wabash, Indiana, DePauw, Notre Dame and other Indiana colleges.

The principal qualifications for membership is participation in an intercollegiate oratorical contest or debate, although some chapters have stipulated further requisites of eligibility. For sixteen years the fraternity bestowed recognition on men only, but in May, 1924, a constitutional amendment opened the organization to women undergraduates on the same basic qualifications as for men.

The scheme of organization pursued during the first few years of existence was peculiar, and one found ultimately to be unsatisfactory. Chapters were not granted to institutions of learning as such, but to eligible persons in a state upon the petition of students from a representative institution or institutions in such state, and expansion within that state was entrusted to the charter members of a state chapter. This method was abandoned in 1913. Arkansas' Chapter was founded in 1914.

SCABBARD AND BLADE, a national society, was founded at the University of Wisconsin in the fall of 1904 by Charles A. Taylor, Leo M. Cook, Victor R. Griggs, Harold K. Weld and Albert W. Foster, Senior officers in the cadet corps.

The organization is modeled upon that of the United States Army, the various chapters being designated "companies," organized into regiments in the order of their establishment. The national society is designated a division, composed of six regiments, each containing twelve companies, except the sixth regiment, which in October, 1926, contained seven companies.

The purpose of the organization is to bring about a closer relationship between the Military Departments in our American universities and colleges; and to spread intelligent information of our nation's military requirements. Members of the Scabbard and Blade are selected from the students enrolled in the advanced courses of military training near the end of the junior year. Men are chosen in accordance with their proficiency and interest in military affairs, personal character and leadership in other University Activities.

Company B of the Second Regiment was organized at the University of Arkansas in 1916.

"SCHOLARSHIP plus agricultural development plus brotherhood" is the purpose of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity. Each year Arkansas chapter presents a silver loving cup to the best all-round Agri freshman, a sweepstakes cup for the winning team in the annual vocational agricultural contest, and sponsors a "get acquainted" for men students in the College of Agriculture.

Alpha Zeta attempts to reach farther than merely the students in the College. Boys from all parts of the state are attracted by the trophies offered in the annual vocational agricultural contest, and especially is the large sweepstakes cup offered by the local chapter a coveted prize. In this way the outstanding high school students of agriculture are induced to participate in the contest and become acquainted with the better methods of farming.

Two years ago the first annual "get-together" smoker was held. The main purpose is to make the freshmen and transfer students familiar with the activities of the College. This affair is sponsored by the Alpha Zeta with the assistance of the faculty members.

Dean Gray says, "College students are citizens, and as a student in College so will he be in later life." He also says that leadership and personality are high steps in the ladder of citizenship. Arkansas Chapter of Alpha Zeta promotes all of these.

Alpha Zeta originated at Ohio State University November 4, 1897. It is an honor organization and does not conflict with general fraternities. Arkansas Chapter was organized in 1917.

THETA TAU was founded at the University of Minnesota on October 15, 1904. It was from the first intended to be a professional general engineering fraternity to inculcate high ethical and professional standards and to foster close fraternal relations among its members. Membership is limited to students of engineering of "personal worthiness and of promising engineering ability." Its scholastic standards are high. It does not permit its members to join other engineering fraternities, either general or departmental, except honorary scholastic organizations, but admits memberships in collegiate social fraternities.

Its general policy is to enter any first-class engineering college or university, and each chapter is permitted to select its members from students following any courses in engineering or geology, as it may desire.

Until 1911 the fraternity was also known as "Hammer and Tongs," but it then adopted as its name the Greek letters which have always appeared on its badge.

The Upsilon Chapter was established at the University of Arkansas in 1928.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA is an honorary chemical fraternity. It was founded at the University of Wisconsin in December, 1902. Its membership is drawn from students of chemistry who intend to make some phase of chemistry their life work. Members of undergraduate fraternities are admitted.

From the date of its founding to 1922 the fraternity was made up of collegiate chapters and alumni chapters, but in 1922 was organized into two general branches, one of them consisting of the collegiate chapters and the other of the professional chapters. Members of the later are professional chemists who have previously been elected in the collegiate chapters.

PHI MU ALPHA, commonly called Sinfonia Fraternity, was organized October 6th, 1898, at the New England Conservatory of Music by Ossian E. Mills and thirteen associates. Its organization at first was that of a club, but in 1900 it was determined to expand and form a regular college fraternity, in musical schools of approved excellence.

The local chapter was installed May 31, 1927, thru the efforts of Henry D. Tovey, who is one of the charter members. The members meet twice a month at the Green Tree Inn, and after a "Dutch feed" hold the meeting. The purpose of the Fraternity is to cultivate the friendships of students interested in music, and to live up to the motto of "Manly Musician and Musicianly Man."

On many campuses the chapter is conducted as a social fraternity, owning or operating their own homes. The local chapter has the option to decide whether it shall be classed as an honorary or social organization. In the smaller schools where number of students following the field of music, is small, it is almost always considered as an honorary professional organization.

PI KAPPA is a Women's Professional Journalistic Sorority, founded at the University of Arkansas in 1917. Membership of this Club is made up of women who are planning to follow the profession of journalism, and the sorority recognizes only those women who have ability along these lines. It corresponds to the Men's Press Club in the University.

Pi Kappa is only a local sorority but styles itself from national organizations of this sort as Alpha Chi Alpha and Theta Sigma Phi. Its purpose is to promote the interests of their profession in the University and to bring about a more perfect feeling and thorough understanding among its members.

THE BLACKFRIARS were organized in 1913 by Professor Roger Williams for the purpose of fostering dramatic interest on the campus. Since that time it has developed into one of the most active organizations in the University. Members are chosen solely for their dramatic ability and the membership is limited to twenty-five members. Monthly meetings are held for the study of things of dramatic interest and several amateur dramatic productions are sponsored during the school year. Open tryouts are held for their plays and casts are selected from the best dramatic talent available from the entire student body.

Since the organization is professional in character and trains its members toward the dramatic profession, the Club is placed in the professional group of fraternities.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI, the only national fraternity for band members, has as its purpose to strive after a more unified band, to discover and promote the best there is in individuals. Members of Kappa Kappa Psi must have musical ability, personality and scholastic standing. It was founded at Oklahoma A. and M. College in 1919 and at the present has fourteen chapters. The Arkansas Chapter was organized in 1924. Only those who have met with careful investigation are eligible for the organization.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI was founded at New York University in 1904, and Beta Zeta chapter was established at the University of Arkansas, November, 1928. The fraternity has 51 chapters.

Beta Zeta chapter is the outgrowth of a club of many years' standing on the Arkansas campus —The Commerce Club. The old club had its ups and downs for many years, but really started on the road to success at the advent of the School of Business Administration, September, 1926. Under the direction of Dean C. C. Fichtner, the club grew and later aspired to become a chapter in Alpha Kappa Psi.

Meetings are held semi-monthly, at which time topics pertinent to business students and future business men are discussed.

This year, Alpha Kappa Psi gave a dance, which was a successful social event of the second semester. Other features of the club have been a series of lectures by outstanding business men, educational movies, and research work conducted by members of Alpha Kappa Psi.

PHI ALPHA DELTA was founded in Chicago, Illinois, November 8, 1902. It was the outgrowth and reorganization of a fraternity of law students known as Lambda Epsilon, founded in 1897. Membership is limited to students of law at the various accredited law schools where chapters are located. Students belonging to general college fraternities are admitted. Members of the legal profession who have attained distinction, upon the approval of the national executive board are eligible to honorary membership by special election and initiation through local chapters.

Names of the chapters are named for famous lawyers and jurists. Garland Chapter was founded in Arkansas University in 1919. It was named for Augustus H. Garland, the only man from Arkansas to be in a President's Cabinet. He served as Attorney-General in President Cleveland's administration.

Glee Club

HARRY E. SHULTZ
Director

JUDGING from the program rendered at the home concert, the Glee Club would have been accepted with praise in any town in the State this year. Unfortunately, however, it was not allowed to make its annual tour due to financial conditions. This was a great loss to University advertisement for in the past it has been the Glee Club that has so efficiently advertised the school to the high schools and patrons of the State.

This year, the Club is composed of men who possess exceptional talent, men of whom the University can feel proud, and, although they were disappointed in the arrangements of this year, they have advertised the efficiency of the Music Department.

Miss Anna Mae Chandler, who was soprano soloist for the Glee Club last year, won the Second Annual State Atwater Kent Radio Audition by a large majority of votes. She went to the national contest where she placed second, winning the two thousand dollars offered for second place, and a year in a large Eastern musical conservatory.

The Glee Club is not altogether a musical organization; it helps in various ways to bring about a friendly spirit among the students on the campus; it tries to bring them together in a friendly way, and promotes a brotherly feeling among its members.

The spirit of the Glee Club goes unbroken; they took their medicine like real gentlemen for they knew that their fate this year was because of an unfortunate circumstance that no one could help. They were cheered, however, at the home recital which goes to show that they are appreciated, and appreciated they should be, for they are true mouthpieces of the University.

Y. M. C. A.

W. S. GREGSON
General Secretary

"GREG" and his Y. M. C. A. are the best known two on the campus for they come in contact with every man student of the University. It is "Greg" who works with untiring efforts to better the living conditions and to keep college manhood pure. The Y. M. C. A. is organized for the same purpose as the national organization and for the purpose of making the student feel at home.

The ideal of service as the basis of all worthy enterprise, has been Greg's motto during the half-score and one years that he has served the institution and he has lived up to every phase of that motto, giving his whole life and soul to his work.

One purpose of the organization is to develop acquaintance among the students. It is found that a student should not go to college merely to study but to associate with those whom they meet. Much of a college education is outside of the classroom, for that learned in books will leave the memory sooner or later, but that learned from friends and acquaintances lives in the heart and goes to the grave with the student. There are extremes, however; some students come to college for mere social reasons, while we find some few who come to study and are never seen in a social gathering; neither of these make noticed progress for we can hang to that old axiom, "All work and no play makes Johnny a dull boy."

The Y. M. C. A. recognizes the worthiness of all useful occupations and dignifies each rotarian to his occupation and to his opportunity to serve. It doesn't matter what the individual plans to follow in life, his occupation is worthy of notice. The organization stresses the fact that acquaintance gives a broader field in which to work.

The Y. M. C. A. promotes Christian works upon the campus. A man's life is not a success until he makes a success with his Creator. He may rise to worldly fame to be honored in the high courts and by the nation, but, after all, what does this amount to if he is not right at heart? He lives today and dies tomorrow; the poorest man in potter's field has lived a more successful life than the conqueror of the world if he makes the Kingdom.

"Greg" and his works have found their way into the hearts of every student. His job is a worthy one. Each year a team is sent out to bring in converts to Jesus Christ, to preach brotherhood and give spiritual leadership and guidance. It also induces young men of the University to become active church members and to take part in religious programs and activities.

The student leaving the University will never forget the kind, genial, smiling face of W. S. Gregson, for his teachings live and shall live longer than those of the classroom professors. They cannot forget what he did for them when they were freshmen when he seemed the only friend on earth to them; it is he who should be honored, for jobs are begun and finished, but the works of the Y. M. C. A. live forever.

Y. W. C. A.

THE Young Women's Christian Association works with untiring efforts to promote Christian work in the University. This year it has worked together as a large fellowship, rather than a small executive board and effects of its work may be seen on the campus. Under the leadership of Miss Theta Dickson, student secretary, it has progressed this year in an unusual manner and becomes more efficient and useful to the young women of the institution.

It works hand in hand with the Y. M. C. A. in its endeavor to lead the students in religious works and to teach them the value of religion.

Every woman student registered in the University is at will a member of the Y. W. C. A. and is invited to take an active part in the work at all times. Among its duties is that of making the freshmen feel at home when they first come to the University. It aids in every possible way to help them get acquainted and feel a welcome in the institution.

EMMA SCOTT
President of Y. W. C. A.

Fellowship is always ready and waiting in their cabin at "Sunset Knoll" with its cozy chairs, fireplace, curtains, books and friends sitting around ready to exchange a bit of gossip, solve the problems of Congress or maybe to unburden their souls to the secretary. They also find fellowship and a search for higher things of life at their vesper services each week.

The following is a statement of purpose adopted at the tenth biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A. at Sacramento, California, April, 1928:

"We unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God.

"We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people.

"In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him."

The task of the organization is a great one. It encounters many problems among the students that it tries to interpret and understand. It endeavors to mold friendships that will last for years and is the most influential Christian organization in the institution.

The Y. W. C. A. will continue its program next year in much the same manner as it did this year. Its field, however, will grow larger as the University grows and it too will expand. To Emma Scott, president of the organization, is due much credit for the progress made this year.

THE Razorback of 1929 adopted its theme, "The Greater University of Arkansas," with the same purpose in view as the Arkansas Boosters Club when they adopted at their founding the slogan, "For a Greater University and a Greater State." As the Razorback is throwing its influence in the same direction as the Arkansas Boosters Club, known on the campus as A. B. C., the University is receiving more constructive advertising out in the state than in previous years.

A. B. C. is a men's pep organization composed of representatives from all fraternities and campus groups. In addition to the carrying out of its slogan, a purpose of the club is to promote student support and interest in athletics and other student activities. Working in collaboration with Rootin' Rubes, a like organization for women, it sponsors many campus attractions. At homecoming, A. B. C. is the engine of the whole machine from the pep meeting held the night before until the gala day is over and all bills are paid. This year it was the publicity agent, with Howard Caldwell at head, for homecoming. Between halves at all football games it aided in the entertainment of the crowd and kept up enthusiasm during the games. Prominent among yell leaders at the games were Charles Frierson, Bo Green, and Chester Robinson.

While students take active parts in all activities already mentioned, there stands one man at the head who pushes things through to success, William S. Gregson—known to all students of the campus as "Greg." He is given responsibility of the pep of the Shreveport trip, when Arkansas meets Louisiana State in football, and of practically all of the "boomers" of the year.

PSI CHI, honorary club for psychology students, was organized at the University of Arkansas in 1924. The membership of the Club is based upon attainment in psychology as evidenced by scholarship and number of courses pursued. Its purpose is to give students interested in the field a broader conception of the subject and to consider some of the outstanding problems that confront psychologists today. It is found that members of this Club make better grades with less actual studying than do students who have no conception of the science.

THE Writers' Club was founded several years ago by Grant McColley who was interested in university writing. Its membership is limited to ten students who have proven that they have ability to do promising creative work in the fields of short stories, essays and sketches. Weekly meetings are held at which the members read their works and criticise them for their literary worth.

Since this Club came into existence the interest taken in writing has increased in the University. Those who have creative ability strive to "make" the Club for it is considered an honor. Some valuable stories and essays have resulted in the Writers' Club and many of these have been published.

W. J. Lemke, sponsor of the Club, has taken a very active part in the work. He is an able journalist and writer and under his leadership the creative ability of these youthful writers has been cultivated; much has been accomplished in the literary and journalistic field of the University of Arkansas and it is expected to grow in the future.

It is not impossible for Arkansas to produce a Milton or a Shaw; the ability is in her realms, cultivation will bring out the inspiration and sons will go forth to mold the opinion of the world—sons of whom the University and the Writers' Club can be proud to claim their own.

THE Poetry Club organized in 1926 for the promotion of interest in the writing of poetry among the students. It solicits for membership only those students of high intelligence and imagination who wish to encourage and assist one another in creative work.

The members meet once a month to discuss modern poetry and to submit poetry for criticism. Elizabeth McLeod, Helen Young, and Averell Reynolds have had work accepted by poetry magazines. The other members and former members have written interesting verse and several of the former members have had verse accepted by magazines.

The organization came into existence through the efforts of Mr. Hawkins, who is especially interested in the study of English, and Mrs. Rosa Zagnoni Marinoni, who writes verse of recognition. It has served well to interest its members and to broaden them in their field.

ALL students enrolled in the Department of Home Economics are eligible for membership in the Home Economics Club. Its purpose is to promote high standards and ideals in home economics, as well as create wholesome social development.

The students of the Home Economics Department operate a house in which home management principles are carried out. In this home the girls take "time about" keeping it in order and caring for a baby which is adopted by the department each year.

A. I. E. E.

"LEAVE it to the Engineers." That is a slogan that has long been adopted by the students of the Engineering College. It is the aim of the A. I. E. E. to develop within its members efficiency so that those who leave their works to them will not be disappointed with the outcome.

The purpose of this local branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers is to promote the interest in electrical engineering and to keep up with developments of this branch. Interesting programs are arranged for the meetings and those taking parts, not only receive a knowledge of current topics, but also learn to feel at ease when addressing an audience. Thus, it trains its members in the same manner as does a literary society in the art of public speaking which is so essential to any business man of today.

The A. I. E. E. is a national organization with branch clubs in all of the larger engineering schools of the United States. Through its influence a closer feeling of relationship is brought about between the various schools and they may know what the engineers of other colleges are doing.

The requirements of the Club is that the member be active in the College of Electrical Engineering and have a desire to learn more in that field. It has had a great influence over the students in this college and tends to increase their desire for further knowledge.

"Put the Engineers on top," seems to be their motto and it is to that end that they are working.

THE Math Club was founded in the University of Arkansas February 11, 1919, by a group of students under the direction of Dr. W. L. Miser. Since that time it has served as a laboratory group to discuss mathematical problems that cannot be discussed in the classroom.

Among some of the charter members of the Club who are now connected with the University are Stitz Hays, Davis P. Richardson, G. W. Droke, A. M. Harding, Fount Richardson and J. K. Farmer. E. E. Stevenson, President of the Club in 1922, made the Rhodes Scholarship Award.

The Math Club has served its purpose well for it has not only brought those together who are interested in mathematics, but has created a tense interest in that field, which is the foundation for all professional work.

THE Pi Delta Alpha is an Honorary Home Economics Society. It was organized at the University of Arkansas in 1928 by students who were interested in Home Economics. The membership is limited to students in the College of Agriculture who are definitely interested in this field.

Although this is one of the youngest clubs on the campus, it is growing by leaps and bounds and its influence on the students may be noticed. One of the most essential courses of college is Home Economics, but until a few years ago it was given the least attention. Prominent educators, however, realized the need of its teaching among the girls of the universities and it is today one of the most important departments.

THE General Engineering Society is composed of all the members of that branch of the University. It is an organization organized for the purpose of promoting the interests of the Engineering College and to bring about a closer relationship between the students of the Department.

It originally began as the Arkansas Chapter of the Collegiate Engineers, but the students, feeling that they could work to a greater advantage, withdrew the chapter to organize the present society.

The organization works to the advantage of its members and with an untiring effort to advertise the engineers throughout this state and other states. Each year it stages the annual festivities of "Engineer's Day" which is held each year on the Friday nearest March 17, in honor of Saint Patrick, patron saint of all engineers. On this day at a special convocation the members of the Senior Class are knighted. Making him Saint Patrick is the highest honor that the society can give a student.

THE WOMAN'S LEAGUE was organized at the University of Arkansas in 1926 by the women students of the institution and with a purpose of doing something to bring about relationship between the women students. It became active immediately and has had a steady growth since. Each year it has an entertainment committee and gives tea dances and other forms of entertainment.

It also holds for co-operation among the students and upholds the standards of honor, scholarship and loyalty to the Alma Mater. Every woman who registers in the University is a member and is welcomed to take a part in its work.

The growth of the organization is proof of its success. Through it friendships are formed that never die, the woman student is given a chance to get acquainted with those who are living around her and who go to her school. Other colleges and universities have adopted this idea and many of them have founded similar organizations to promote co-operation among the women students.

Other duties of the organization are to educate the young woman to her duties as a citizen and to instruct them in affairs of national and international importance.

AGRI DAY originated in 1915 in the form of a "Harvest Festival," a mere attraction in which only a dozen or so students took part. Since that date it has grown into one of the largest celebrations that is staged on the campus.

The first Agri Day was held the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, 1915, originating for the purpose of dignifying the college and University campus and for advertising its works to the people throughout the state.

This first celebration consisted of a parade made possible by the expenditure of $90 for the arrangement of floats. Although the parade is now one of the features of the celebration, it was abandoned in 1916 because of what was considered the riotous expenses of 1915.

In 1916 a new attraction was added—the barn warming. It was held in the armory and the decree against decorations had not gone into effect at that time. Shocks of fodder were scattered throughout every nook and corner, adding as much as possible to the appearance of a typical farmer's barn.

The next year brought on the war, many of the boys being called away. The Home Ec girls were a bit dubious as to their ability to carry on the plan mapped out by the boys, but they tried it. Agri Day went on just the same in the form of a country carnival. The parade was again omitted and was not used again until after the war.

With the return of many of the boys in 1919 the parade again became the peak of the celebration. Led through the town by Vice-Dean Martin Nelson and Pet Irby, masquerading as Uncle Silas and Aunt Mandy, the parade proved the hit of the day.

Since that date the Agri Day has continued to grow. It has grown into a celebration that students look forward to from one year to another. The Agri Day Association grew out of it and is the largest organization of the Agricultural College. It also sponsors the election of the officers for the Arkansas Agriculturist.

Methodist Young People's Department

REV. H. M. LEWIS, Superintendent

THE Young People's Department of the First Methodist Church has made this a most successful year with an increased enrollment and constant interest. A number of activities have been carried on which were not included in the regular work but which were closely correlated with it. The effectiveness of the department has been broadened by this method.

The work of the young people's orchestra has been particularly effective this year, and it has added much to the Sunday School programs. Three special classes in the Sunday School are conducted for students of the University of Arkansas. Dean Virgil L. Jones teaches a class for University upperclassmen, and Mrs. Rosebud Vaughn Savage teaches a corresponding class of young women students. Rev. H. M. Lewis is the teacher for the mixed class, composed of freshman students.

The Wesley Players, an organization of members of the department who are interested in amateur dramatics, has given a number of programs of one-act plays. The annual department banquet was one of the most successful ever held.

THE American Society of Mechanical Engineers is a national organization composed of practicing engineers. In addition to the regular society there are branches of the organization open to students of engineering colleges.

Membership into this local chapter is limited to those who are studying mechanical engineering. The purpose of the organization is to promote interest in that phase of engineering.

Members carry on research work, present original papers at the meetings and pictures are shown on the screen of engineering interest. In this way interest is aroused and students are inspired to persue further in that field.

THE Branner Geology Club was organized February 5, 1925, by J. C. Branner. The purpose of the organization is to bring together, in a social way, the students and faculty to discuss informally the various problems and developments in the geological field.

Its aim is to interest the student body as a whole in geology and its relation to other sciences and with the welfare of the country. Geology does play an important role on the stage of progressiveness, and few realize the greatness of its work.

The principal requirement for membership is that the student take active interest in the work.

Owen C. Mitchell's Arkansas Travelers

THE TRAVELERS have enjoyed wide popularity both in and out of the state this year. This orchestra, composed of University students and acclaimed as one of the best in this territory, has furnished music for most of the student and fraternity dances on the campus, as well as filling many cut-of-town engagements. Included in these is a contract for a monthly appearance at the Crystal Ballroom of the Mayo Hotel at Tulsa and Forrest Park, Joplin, and Fort Smith engagements. The Travelers broadcast over KUOA from midnight until 2 o'clock every Friday night. They have been engaged for the summer season at Forrest Park.

THE Globe Trotters Orchestra was organized this year at the University with recruit members from the Vagabond Orchestra of last year and several members out in town. Earl Donathan, saxophonist, was selected by the musicians as leader.

During the course of the year the Globe Trotters have played for University student dances in the armory, numerous fraternity house and dinner dances, fraternity armory dances, and out of town engagements.

The Orchestra is usually used by the leader as a six-piece orchestra. However, at certain times and occasions, there have been as many as nine in it.

The Director, Earl Donathan, has striven for an equal and balanced distribution of instruments in order to obtain the greatest efficiency from the least number of men.

THE "A" Club was reorganized in 1922 by the lettermen of the University. Since that date it has been one of the most prominent organizations on the campus. The following is a copy of three articles from their constitution:

ARTICLE II—The object of the Club shall be:

- (1) To take and encourage an active interest in all University athletic contests.
- (2) To keep alive University traditions.
- (3) To encourage a spirit of good sportsmanship on our teams and among out student body.
- (4) Hospitality toward visiting athletic teams, treating them as our guest.
- (5) To encourage better scholarship among candidates for Varsity teams and members of the Freshman teams.
- (6) To word and deed do everything possible to boost and advertise the University.
- (7) To be an active power in influencing and interesting high school graduates and those who have finished the secondary schools in the state, to attend the State University.
- (8) To preserve the athletic records of the University, scores of games, trophies, photographs, etc.
- (9) Prizing the Varsity "A" as the highest athletic honor that can be bestowed by the University. We also pledge ourselves to see that only those men who have won their letters shall wear the "A."

ARTICLE III—Active membership in the "A" Club shall be limited to those men who have won the athletic "A" as a member of a Varsity Team.

ARTICLE I (By-Laws)—Agreeable to the ancient custom, no high school or other athletic letter shall be worn on the campus by students. Only the Varsity "A" shall be worn on the campus.

THE Girls' Drum Corps was organized at the University in the spring of 1928, with 14 charter members. Angie Madge Kieth was the first drum major and Edith Gregson was the first student leader. Activities that spring consisted of playing at local club meetings, parades, etc., and in the summer the members available marched in the Centennial parade, which was held at Fayetteville, July 4.

This year, the Drum Corps has been active at all athletic events and during the football season furnished entertainment between halves at many of the games. Home-coming Day, they grouped with the Rootin' Rubes and Arkansas Boosters Club to make the U. of A. formation on the field. In the home-coming military parade the second battalion marched to the music of the corps, led by Rachel Bacus.

At the beginning of this year, the Drum Corps adopted a standard uniform, which consists of a dress of white flannel and a cap of the same material lined with red satin. In the center of the back of the cape is a miniature razorback, symbolizing the University of Arkansas.

THE purpose of the Xi Delta Psi, essentially a dormitory organization, is to promote a feeling of good fellowship, further a friendly spirit and to work toward the mutual benefit of its members. Besides meeting weekly, the Xi Delta Psi gathers at the Campus Cafeteria once a month for a Dutch feed. Each semester a date banquet is held by its members.

At meetings affairs in the dormitory are discussed at length and also matters of University interest. Discipline, both in the dormitory and in the University, is one of the fundamental principles of the fraternal organization.

ANOTHER Senior Class is being graduated; forty-three young doctors are setting out to spend our lives in serving human life and comfort. Four years ago we were only Freshmen, beginners in the most difficult of sciences. In the first year, we were exposed to Chemistry; we carved up "Oscar", from his follicular appendages to his distal phalanges. In the Sophomore year, we came to know the dog catcher by his first name; and, later on, we went aground on the reef of Pathology. We realized here that Sherman's observation was limited.

As Juniors and Seniors, life was much more tolerable. Long-deferred social obligations were fulfilled; our trousers were pressed; and we again found time to use a razor. We found, also, that to be called "Doctor" made up for years of hardship, even though it be by A colored patient.

But now we pass to a more serious field; one filled with problems and responsibilities—the responsibility for human life and comfort. We cannot all be great, but we earnestly hope that we can genuinely fulfill the chief duty of the physician, "to prolong life and make it more tolerable."

THE present Junior Class began its precarious existence in September, 1926, forty-seven strong. The Freshman year was one long-losing battle with the science of Anatomy, and many fell by the wayside. The Sophomore year was noteworthy chiefly for its numerous dogs and autopsies. In this, the Junior year, the remaining members of the class—only twenty-nine—learned to wear white coats and an air of infinite wisdom, and to conduct themselves, for minutes at a time, like mature and learned doctors.

At its entrance into Medicine, this was known as the Class that God Forgot. But its long struggles against long-deferred Chemistry grades, disappearing dogs, and Gynecological examinations by force, have not gone for naught. The class now stands together as one man, and at the close of this year, its ambitious members can see in the distance the long-coveted M. D.

OVER another hill past another fork of the trail toward that goal which has drawn so many since old Aesculapius blazed the way. Proud are we, the chosen few, to be past those obstacles which have already stopped so many. How can Medicine and Surgery hold any terrors for us who have weathered the storms of Anatomy, Chemistry, Physiology, and Pathology.

We feel that the early clinical observations allowed us this year will result profitably both to us and to our patients.

Looking forward to the next two years causes a pleasurable glow over us. As great M. D.s we hope to follow the footsteps of the Fathers of Medicine and to place additional stones in the barrier which our science is erecting between human happiness and that grim spectre, Disease.

Square and Compass

SQUARE AND COMPASS is an intercollegiate fraternity of Master Masons. The fraternity was founded at Washington and Lee University in 1917, and now consists of fifty-five active chapters.

Arkansas Medical Square was founded in 1923, and the Square is now a major factor in the activities of the school. The Square brings together members of the faculty and of the different fraternities in a social way and much good is derived from this Association.

The organization has had a very rapid growth, both locally and nationally. When the local chapter was originally organized it had a charter membership of only ten. The chapter has developed into an organization of twenty-four members, two of whom are now national officers.

Square and Compass is distinguished from other fraternities on the Arkansas Medical School campus in that the members of the organizations are as a rule older and more mature. This of course is due to the fact that a person must at least be of masonic age to become a member.

At Little Rock the fraternity is closely associated with the local Masonic order and works in harmony with it for the good of the community.

To be a Square and Compass a member is doubly ritualistic in that he has both the manual of the fraternity and the manual of the Blue Lodge and relative orders.

History of The University of Arkansas Medical School

"THAT a medical department be established at Little Rock; that P. O. Hooper, M. D., be and act as principal, that he, with advice and consent of state medical association, appoint assistants and lecturers." This was the report of Chairman Gregg of the Committee on the Medical Department of the University located at Little Rock, June 16, 1879. On June 18 the report was accepted.

In the summer of 1879, an announcement was quietly made that, on October 7, classes would open and lectures would begin. There were fifteen names listed in the faculty among whom were: P. O. Hooper, James H. Southall, and James S. Dibrell. The course was arranged to last three years. A suitable building had been secured and hospitals offered their facilities for laboratories.

Twenty-two students registered the first year. Out of this number one graduated. At their June meeting in 1880 the board ordered that the word "Industrial" be inserted in the title of the medical department to indicate that it was a department of the Arkansas Industrial University.

The Medical Department in 1891 moved into a three-story building on Second and Sherman streets. Hospital facilities had increased by this time so as to add to the effectiveness of the teaching staff. The county hospital was available as well as the Little Rock Infirmary. Isaac Folsom Clinic, endowed with $20,000, also strengthened the Medical Department in 1891.

From 1879 to 1892 the students of the Medical Department were required to attend lectures for only two years. After July, 1892, in accordance with the requirements of the American Medical Association, all students who had not attended a full course of lectures before that date were required to attend three full courses of six months each in three separate years. Three years later, when the association required four years, the Medical Department did likewise. They have also followed the association in its matter of requirements for admission.

The faculty numbered sixteen during the first year's existence of the Medical College, and the student body numbered twenty-two. Ten years later there was the same number of members of the faculty, yet the student body numbered seventy-six. At the end of another decade there was still the same number of instructors, but the enrollment of students was almost double.

In 1911 the Medical Department was consolidated with the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and by an act of the general assembly became the School of Medicine of the University of Arkansas.

Besides having an exceptionally small number of graduates as compared to matriculates the School of Medicine has entrance requirements difficult to meet, an indication of thorough instruction. The candidate must be 21 years of age and present satisfactory evidence of good moral character. He must have attended and satisfactorily completed four courses of lectures, no two of which shall have been attended in the same calendar year. Three years of the required work may have been done in some other medical college of recognized standing whose requirements are equivalent to those of this college. The senior year must be done in residence at this college, if the M. D. degree is desired from the University of Arkansas.

HOG WALLOW

The longest step ever taken in bringing Arkansas out of the mud will be the completion of a Greater University. And Arkansas is climbing from the wallow. As the wild razorback, typifying the State which raises him best, is leaving his slimy haunts to be followed to dry land by another in the rut—education in Arkansas is the pioneer of progress and advancement.

Dedication

TO THAT august committee of altruistic souls who look after and protect the welfare of our student body, who so efficiently, promptly, and surely execute justice in all cases. To those men so highly respected and admired by the entire student body, we respectfully dedicate this section.

THE DISCIPLINE COMMITTEE

IN MEMORIAM

THIS SPACE IS DEDICATED TO A SNAPPY LITTLE CARTOON WHICH FAILED TO RECEIVE THE CENSOR'S O. K.

(The reader may see the cartoon if he will go to the trash pile out behind the warehouse.)

Congratulations:

GUILTY ONES.

This is your lucky year—

Your thanks are not due us, however. We had evil intentions (and still have), but for two reasons, we have not divulged your orgies here.

1st—We want to stay in school.

2nd—The Censorship Committee.

Don't be surprised at the lack of juicy scandal or at the absence of your unfavorable publicity.

Your thanks are due the censors—They are the guardians of your crime.

P. S.—If your filthy curiosity is not satisfied here, we refer you to last year's Hog Wallow, or better still to the Razz section of "Ole Miss," official yearbook of the University of Mississippi.

The World wonders if "Shotgun" Wren still corresponds to his "Ruby Belt Buckle Queen" at Prescott, Arkansas.

On the next page you see the familiar faces of Hog Wallow's Traditional Team. This year the Committee on Selection had to deliberate for a long while before they could agree on who would be the most suitable and most typical for Team membership. There were so many candidates, who in all circumstances would be eligible for membership that we used an eliminating process; due to this fact the Alpha Lambda Taus and Lambda Chis did not rate. We did not have room to include the entire chapter roll of the Kappa Alphas, so rather than show partiality to any one we left them all out. Qualifications necessary were:

(1) He must think himself a campus leader and foremost in his own "Who's Who."

(2) He must prove to the outside world that he is one. (We didn't say what, but that was understood by the Committeemen.)

(3) Second Team members were selected but due to our need of space for other athletes (Spanish and otherwise), we leave the anxious public to play upon their own imagination.

If you did not make the team this year, reconcile yourself and try rating it next year. Many of you are living up to the standards that are required but you have not the prominence required to place your name in this year's Hall of Shame.

Oh yes, I might mention the fact that the Committee did not consider Cooper Jacoway, although he was self-conceited enough to believe that he rated the Monarch's position—probably he does, but its hard to get three men to agree.

“We’re the team you know so well
And we’ll admit it hurts like —— (Use your sense of rhythm)
To make the TEAM! TEAM! TEAM!

Credo—I believe in the Brotherhood of Man, in the strength of the Human Will (to Drink anything), the mystery of the FraternityBlah, BLAh—Etc.

THIS organization has grown very steadily this year and has become one of the strongest of its kind on the campus. Such an aggregation of leaders deserve some publicity, so, therefore this free space. Originally it was called the Booze Who list of A. U., but we have discarded that vulgar appellation for the more aesthetic term.

Testimonial Letters

Dear Doctor Hale:

I was feeling fine before I took your Hale Anti Flu Treatment and after taking it it straightened me out (on a stretcher.) My lungs became clogged, I spit up blood, my mouth was dry, my teeth fell out as if I was salivated, the moon skidded in her course, the planets faltered in their places and the sun turned to blood. There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. I can heartily recommend Hale's Anti Flu treatment for the influenza; that's where I got my case.

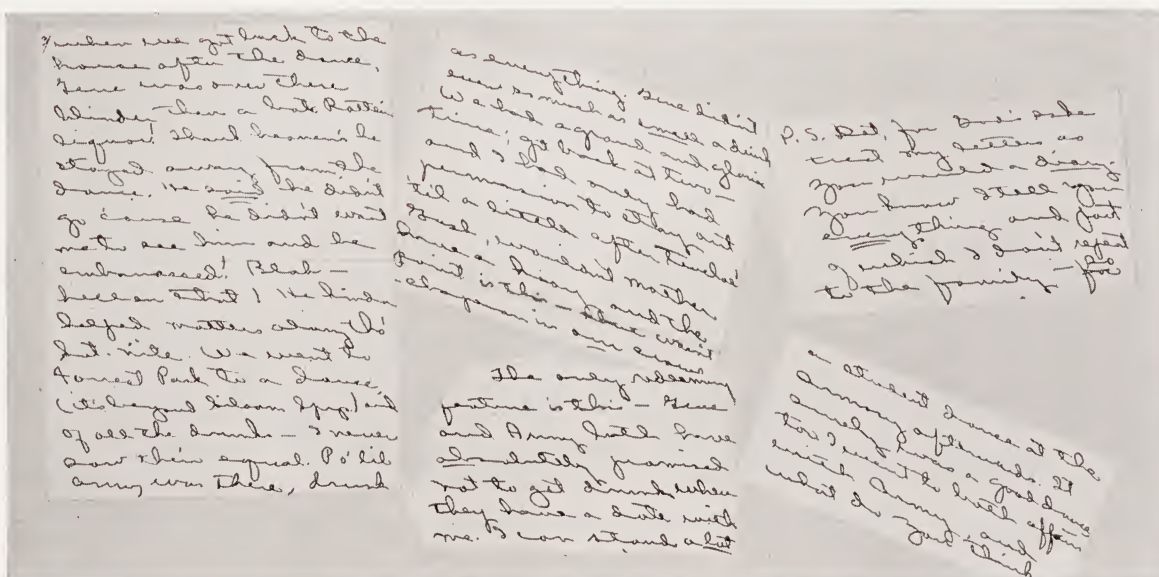

Sickly yours,
A. B. C.

Dear Editor:

On February 21st, I advertised in your Ark. Traveler for a prospective "better-half" and three days later, I was happily married.

Matrimonily Yours
SAM.

KEPPA ALPHALFA

Here we have the southerner's pin, sacred emblem of that rawdy clan. It is supplied in lots of ten to each member and has an interesting design.

The heart, club, diamond and spade, arranged around the edge of the shield are a key to points in the fraternity game of poker. Inside are the ivory cubes symbolizing the life-long and untiring efforts of the gang along mathematical lines.

Below all these, we find the lamp of learning which would remind us of the high standard of scholarship reflected by this fraternity, evidently due to the untiring efforts of some of the many prominent faculty members.

Motto—Near Beer, Neck and Nonsense.

Flower—Spittonia.

PIE FLYS

Pi Flies were founded a way back by Lena Boushesky and Rose Murphy and has risen to its present status largely thru their efforts. The pin is in the shape of a broom with a dust pan on one end. A rope dangles between the two ends (don't forget the rope and is used to a great advantage in roping (in). This assorted collection of man-eaters comes in 57 varieties, a model for every pocketbook. Announcement parties are held every week.

Motto—Clean 'em up, girls, the lord is on our side.

Flower—Century plant.

Song—You gotta see your mama every night.

CRY "OH"

If this kitty were black and white, you would at once guess this was the (Censored. Too strong) pin. However, it is not, so the next logical place for the said feline is the Chio (not Chiropractic) house.

The smile is that, "Take me to the Mountain Inn" grin and the extraordinary development of the tongue denotes much use. In fact it was a Chio O. who said she had to put her jaw in splints to keep from interrupting herself while she was studying. The knife and fork serve to remind one of the name "Chow Omega." The spoon is either lost or worn out.

Motto—Let there be light.

Flower—Horseradish.

The above is a true and false statement of the financial standing of the 1929 Arkansas Traveler as filed before me on the 1st day of May, by the Editor and Business Manager of said publication.

MERRY PASON, Notary Public.

SYNOPSIS OF A GREAT STORY

Ordinarily things equal to the same thing are equal to each other but not so in the case, "Sot" Sadlers versus "Bo" Green.

The time was midnight and the scene was in the Pi Phi back yard. The heroes were the above mentioned slightly spirited by the gorgeous moonshine. The trouble started when "Bo" Green made the slight remark that the S. A. E.'s were better than the Sigma Alpha Epsons. "Sot" Sadler, his companion, took offense and argument followed—blows resulted.

Grand conclusion: Things equal to the same thing are not equal to each other.

One of the candidates in the last election lost Carnall because at one time he remarked that he wouldn't go to that hog pen. The same man figured in the election that he was the only man who could handle any job and scratched every name on the ballot but his own. That is our idea of conceit, but we can credit him—politics didn't split fifty-fifty.

And now in conclusion, as we go to press:

Lots have been left out. Some things will happen after this goes to press. If you are so unimportant as not to be mentioned—Don't Gripe. And if some of your failings have been noticed—Don't Gripe, but be thankful that only your lesser faults have been stuck here.

We offer no apologies.

THE financial success of any book depends on advertising. On the following pages are advertisements of progressive business and professional men who are loyal supporters of our Alma Mater. Read their advertisements and in appreciation of their support patronize them.

Our advertisers are a select group—they have helped us build a bigger and better Razorback. They are interested in our GREATER UNIVERSITY. It is our sincere desire that you patronize these men who have made the publication of this book possible.

University of Arkansas in the Past, 1871-1929

ARKANSAS INDUSTRIAL UNIVERSITY was established by virtue of an act of Congress donating public lands for educational purposes, and in accordance with an act of the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas. This organic act of March, 1871, created a board of trustees of eleven members.

The primary duty of the board was to find a location for the new University. The third Monday in September, 1871, was selected as the date of examining competitive bids which would determine this location. Highest bidders for the school were Washington County, which had voted $100,000 in 30-year bonds with the town of Fayetteville offering $30,000 for the location within the town; Batesville, which had voted $50,000 to secure the University; and Pulaski County, which had one citizen offer 160 acres of land three miles from Jackson Springs. In Washington County there were two towns competing for the locations: Fayetteville, mentioned before as offering its $30,000, and Prairie Grove, which offered $23,000 in notes and lands. The board, now fully settled upon Washington County, gave attention to the two rival communities. When it was found that the bids of Prairie Grove could not possibly be collected, Fayetteville was given Arkansas Industrial University.

Washington County has always been an educational center, in spite of the fact that it is a mountain county with a population not overly wealthy. The Scotch-Irish settlers of the county as early as 1860 had one-tenth of all the common schools in the state. Two decades earlier Miss Sawyer, a missionary to the Cherokees, conducted a school for girls at Fayetteville. In 1848 a female seminary was established at Mount Comfort, three miles to the north of Fayetteville. In 1852 Cane Hill College was organized. Also in 1852, Arkansas College was established at Fayetteville. It may be understood why Washington County, toned up with education and the intelligence of a superior population, especially at Fayetteville and the nearby community of Cain Hill, obtained the school which later was given the name "University of Arkansas."

At the time the University was established at Fayetteville about all that can be said of the town was its delightful climate and healthful altitude, for with the exception of four or five churches and a city treasury free from indebtedness, the assets of the town were limited. A daily line of four-horse coaches ran from Neosho, Missouri, the terminus of the Southern Pacific, to Fort Smith, through Fayetteville. Till then there were no railroads near the town and the first students who entered the University came as far as Van Buren by rail and caught the stage-coach for the mountain community of 1,500 population.

The executive committee, which had been appointed to see after the erection of buildings, now became active, for universities then, just as universities now, can't hold classes under trees. The committee found nothing on the site selected for the University that could be used as a main building except a small six-room house. They thereupon requested the committee on grounds and buildings to remodel the residence and to erect a two-story frame structure suitable for a school building and capable of being converted into dormitories. Even this, thought the committee, did not offer enough facilities for a State University, and another building was erected, this one a modern structure at a cost of $2,219.

Students matriculating on the first day of school were A. W. Gregg, A. S. Gregg, Anna Putnam, C. R. Gilbreath, R. Putnam, W. G. Brooks, and H. F. Buie. The faculty for the first term consisted of N. P. Gates, acting president and principal of the normal department and acting professor of mental and moral philosophy, salary $2,440; C. H. Leverett, professor of ancient languages and literature, salary $2,000; Miss Mary R. Gorton, preceptress of mathematics and English literature in the normal department, salary $2,000; and Miss L. J. Stanard, instructor in the model school, salary $1,500.

Old Main Hall was completed in 1875, patterned exactly after the main building of the University of Illinois, which had been erected a year or two before. Today the two universities of Illinois and Arkansas have as their so-called main buildings identical structures, the only difference being that the University of Arkansas still considers hers as being of importance to the campus.

The executive committee now looked about for the first official president of the University. In July, 1875, General Joseph E. Johnston of Georgia was offered the presidency. He declined. In the spring of 1877 the committee corresponded with General D. H. Hill of Charlotte, North Carolina, and General A. P. Stuart of Oxford, Mississippi. When the board met in June, General Hill was elected at a salary of $3,000 as the first official president of Arkansas Industrial University.

The University has been featured by student activities almost since the beginning. In 1873 the first literary society was organized under the name "Clariosophic." It died in 1878. For some reason eleven members of the Clariosophic became dissatisfied with their society and organized another in 1873 which they called Mathesian. Another was soon organized, known as the Philomathean; however, little is known about this society beyond the fact that it continued in friendly rivalry with the Mathesian until the session of 1895-96, when it finally succumbed. The Garland Literary Society was organized in 1888 and was named in honor of the Honorable Augustus H. Garland. The history of the Grady society is difficult to trace. It appears to have been organized in the spring of 1895 but its career soon ended. In the fall of 1900 four young men began to meet for the purpose of debate and organized the society known as Periclean. The Demosthenean came in 1907. The Philotimesian, 1896, was the first society exclusively for girls. The Sapphic followed in 1906. With the growth of the student body to such a capacity that it became impossible to mass them together in the auditorium, and with the coming of fraternities in added numbers to the campus, literary societies have passed away.

With the passing of 57 years—some stormy, some peaceful—which the University has experienced, customs have revolutionized, modes of teaching have changed, old ideas abandoned. Today, with its approximately 1,400 students, the University of Arkansas maintains a teaching staff of some 150. Buildings have been added to the campus until they now number more than twenty. Courses are taught in practically every line, leading to as many degrees. Hazing of freshmen has been abolished under the new campus discipline. Government has been gradually placed in the hands of the student body. The Missouri system of grading, which tends toward uniformity among all professors, is used with moderation and discretion. Wheels of the entire machine run smoothly and every piston blow whispers to the world that the people of the State may look forward to a

"Lest We Forget Our Pals of College Days"

The way I sign my check:

When School is out, address my letters:

[illegible]

Old North Tower

(By Chicken Farmer)

I wandered far o'er hill and vale
In that last parting hour;
And backward turned my face to see
The heights of old North Tower.
I wandered on o'er life's glad road
On land and o'er deep sea:
But never did that vision fade
In my dim memory.

I may forget the cultured pros,
The dances, proms and friends;
For all those things must live to die
As all things have their ends.
But when my hair is silvery grey,
And I am in His power,
I will look back once more to see
That view of Old North Tower.

May this book's mission never die,
Let North Tower rise up still,
To reign the "Greater School" of ours
Upon that sacred hill.
Be it of pleasure to our souls,
Many old-time anthems ring,
As we recall our college days,
These sweetest notes to sing:

*"Ever the legions of sin will assail us,
Ever the battles in cities afar;
Still in the depths will thy spirit eternal
Beckon us on like a piloting star.
Down the dim years do thy dead children call thee;
Wasted to sleep while the springtime was new;
We of the Present, thy Hope of the Future,
Mother of Mothers, we pray unto you."*

THE END.
